Alleged Feudist Declares Tormentors Plotted His Death by Keeping Him Chained to Trees.

STORY IS ABSURD, SHERIFF BELIEVES

Abductors of Doctor and Dry Official Believed Known—County Officer Begins Inquiry.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—“To make a long story short—dead men tell no tales.” I think that explains, in the shortest possible fashion why Dr. W. D. Mason and myself were abducted and tortured for ten days by a gang of masked men in the wilds of Signal mountain.

The foregoing statement was made today at a local hospital by Lawrence Bowman, alleged feudist and aide to federal prohibition agents, kidnapped along with Dr. Mason, a veterinarian, on June 23 and kept tied to trees until Sunday morning by enemies.

Bowman and Dr. Mason intimated that warrants would be sworn out for members of the masked band who participated in the abduction.

Bowman declared that he believed that the real cause of the kidnapping was due to the fact that he had turned up a number of stills in the neighborhood of Lone Oak and the Sequatchie and Hamilton county line recently for Federal Prohibition Agent W. F. Grubb.

Abductors Not Named.

“They intended to get Dr. Mason, too, so that he could not tell what they had done to me,” said Bowman.

Bowman refused to name the abductors, although he indicated that he could identify several of them.

“I have suffered tortures for reporting so many distilleries to Agent Grubb,” said Bowman. “It was during the April term of federal court that I opened up on the stills in my section of the county. In all I believe that I turned up about 15 stills, practically all of them within a radius of a mile of the house owned by Sam Godsey, deputy sheriff of Sequatchie county, including one which was hardly more than 150 yards from the house.”

Sam Godsey has been bound over to federal court on charges of owning and operating a distillery, while his brother, Benton, has been bound over for attempting to bribe a government officer and intimidate a government officer after shooting Agent W. F. Grubb and his brother, John, on the streets of Chattanooga some weeks ago.

Attacked Suddenly.

Relating his story of the attack by masked men, Bowman said:

“We were driving along the road when suddenly five or six men rose up beside us and got on the running boards of the car, commanding us to halt. They had revolvers and clubs and a couple of masks over his face, evidently made of sack, with a single eye-hole cut in each one. When they jumped into the car they said they had come to see me, one of them loose from the car and he struck me over the head with the butt end of a revolver.

“They made us walk from three to five miles and chained us to a different place every night. I remember that one of them said to me something like ‘you’re not going to tell anything at this trial.’ They were, I firmly believe, taking Dr. Mason along, too, so that he would not have an opportunity to go back and tell what they did to me. The trouble here is that one of them said that they were going to make away with me, so that I couldn’t tell when the trial comes.”

Sheriff Doesn’t Believe Story.

“They fed us like dogs on a little rough food. We had practically no water. I can hardly talk now because of the hell I went through from lack of water. I believe that I will be able to identify them as I sit and think and he has quit thinking.”

“He believes it is not right to learn more about nature than the authors of Genesis knew. He is the supreme skeptic.”

Pola Negri Is Fined $10,000

ACTRESS MUST PAY $57,000 TO RECOVER GEMS

For Not Declaring Jewelry

New York, July 6.—(AP)—A fine reported to amount to $10,000 has been imposed upon Pola Negri, motion picture actress, it was learned tonight, by the government for failing to declare two diamond and emerald bracelets and a diamond ring when she arrived in this country last May. It was reported that the government had assessed the jewelry at $47,000, so that Miss Negri will have to pay a total of $57,000 to recover the gems.

The jewels have been in the possession of the customs authorities since a few days after her arrival.

Henry C. Stuart, assistant collector of the port, said tonight that he did not know the exact amount of the fine or the value of the jewels, but that the reported figures were probably correct.

Several days after the arrival of the Berengaria Miss Negri appeared at the custom house and told Mr. Elliott that it was the fault of her maid that she had failed to declare the jewelry and several bottles of wine which inspectors found in her trunk. She had told the maid to declare them, she said, and the maid had neglected to do so. The maid, however, said she declared exactly what her mistress had told her to declare.

It became known today that even before Miss Negri left the Berengaria she was called upon by a treasury department representative, who told her that this government knew of the jewelry and cautioned her not to forget to declare it.

Miss Negri at first said that she had declared all the property she had but later produced an emerald ring. Some time later an agent visited her and asked her if she had not received the 30-carat diamond as a present while in France. She admitted this and the ring was seized, as were the bracelets.

SOLONS TO HEAR VIEWS OF WALKER ON TAX SITUATION

BRILLIANT STARS IN ‘GYPSY BARON’ THRILL BIG CROWD

Governor Clifford Walker will deliver his message on taxation problems of the state before a joint session of the general assembly at 11 o’clock this morning and will stress a necessity for increased revenue if the state is to meet pressing demands of its educational institutions and common schools in order to give all children an equal educational chance.

He will also recommend passage of a constitutional amendment permitting classification of property for taxation in order to reach intangible property, and enactment of another constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to levy a limited tax on incomes.

With the tax problem—considered by many to be the outstanding question before the 1925 legislature—will come committee assignments announced by presiding officers of both houses Monday, and with the first committee meetings set for today, the assembly is now buckling down to serious work of the session. Determination for accomplishment evidenced by practically all members is still another factor in the prospect that the final adjournment on August 22, a program of achievement for the best interests of the state will have been written into the official history of 1925.

Miss Bessie Kempton, of Fulton county, who Monday was named by Speaker W. Cecil Neill as chairman of the important Western & Atlantic railroad committee, has called an organization meeting of that committee today.

Ryan, Yago, Dunne and Meader in Leading Roles Achieve Notable Triumphs.

Charlotte Ryan, soprano, comes into her own in “The Gypsy Baron,” fourth of the six light operas the Municipal Opera association is presenting this summer at the auditorium. The star of the Metropolitan found her first real chance of the season in this melodious work by Johann Strauss and she rose to magnificent heights in the many lovely arias, duets and trios that abound in the score.

“The Gypsy Baron” is of an altogether different type of entertainment than any of the three bills which preceded it at the auditorium. It is constructed more on the recognized principles of opera and less like musical comedy than either “The Mikado,” “The Prince of Pilsen” or “The Spring Maid.” Throughout the three acts, arias follow trios, and duets follow arias, following the conductor’s baton in magnificent ensemble numbers that bring the curtain down in crashing climaxes of heroic harmonies.

It is only fair to give a special word of praise to the scenery and stage settings. Each of the three scenes compelled spontaneous applause as soon as the curtains were drawn. The work is that of a local company.

Meader Wins Praises.

George Meader, the tenor, is given the best chance to use his really splendid voice since the opening week when he was “Nanki Pook,” in the Gilbert and Sullivan masterpiece. He sings the role of Sander Barinkay, “the Gypsy,” with an abandon and a vigor that fits the character gloriously and the rich tones of his dramatic voice are heard to great advantage.

Common council voted for the bond issue at its last meeting, but the paper was held up when the aldermanic board voted non-concurrence. However, the conference committee appointed Monday, consisting of Al-

EIGHT PERSONS DIE IN NEW HEAT WAVE

Six Die in Chicago, Two in New York—Scores Prostrated as Records Are Smashed.

Chicago, July 6.—(AP)—Six deaths and several prostrations were attributed to the heat in Chicago today when the temperature mounted to 96 at 4 o’clock, the hottest July 6 in Chicago since 1874. It was not the hottest day this year, however, as the mercury went to 98 last Saturday.

Chicago’s high temperature was recorded tonight when a violent thunderstorm struck the city about 9 o’clock.

TWO NEW YORK DEATHS ARE BLAMED ON HEAT.

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Two deaths and several prostrations were recorded today in a new heat wave which for a time threatened to top the high temperature record for July 6. Zephyrs from the sea gave some relief later in the afternoon but the excessive humidity caused much suffering in the congested districts.

BLASCO IBANEZ MARRIES IN FRANCE

Nice, France, July 6.—(AP)—Vicente Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish novelist, and Mme. Dona Elena Ortuzar Bulnes, widow of a Chilean diplomat, were married at Mentone Saturday. The wedding was extremely quiet, being attended only by witnesses.

The first wife of Ibañez died January last.

Riches Stolen From Vatican Are Recovered

Head of Gang of Thieves and Three Accomplices Are Jailed.

Rome, July 6.—(AP)—One of the principal organizers of the robbery of the treasury of St. Peter’s Friday night has been arrested and the precious objects stolen have been recovered. Three accomplices also have been seized by the police.

Police Commissioner Marotta, pretending that he was a receiver of stolen goods, got in contact with a former shoemaker, Mariano Stella, one of the men who plotted the robbery, and who is believed to have concealed the precious objects stolen. (The police commissioner in this way was able to recover the objects this evening and Stella was arrested.)

Estimates of the intrinsic value of the loot obtained by the thieves who entered St. Peter’s sacristy Friday night first put the loss at more than $1,000,000, but it finally was determined that much less than that would cover the intrinsic value of the treasure, although some of them were irreplaceable in a sentimental sense.

The most valuable of the stolen articles was a cross presented to Pope X by the republic of Colombia. It was a weighty, solid gold object adorned with emeralds of rare purity. A block of raw emerald formed the cross base. A ring normally used to decorate a finger of the statue of St. Peter also was taken, along with other objects, but the thieves left behind them millions of dollars’ worth of treasure in the world’s richest treasure house.

INDICTMENTS SOON IN BANK INQUIRY

Tennessee Grand Jury To Begin Probe Today of Failure Involving Shortage of $300,000.

Jackson, Tenn., July 6.—Return of indictments within the next two days was forecast by prosecuting officials when the Madison county grand jury reconvened today with a dozen or more witnesses waiting to testify to an alleged shortage of more than $300,000 discovered by bank examiners in the accounts of the Peoples Savings Bank of Jackson, now in the hands of a receiver.

T. J. Murray, district attorney general, announced that several indictments had been prepared but would not be presented to the grand jury before tomorrow.

Thomas B. Carroll, former cashier, John M. Carroll, assistant cashier, and W. L. Cavillon, a timber dealer, already are under bond on warrants issued after the bank crash.

Mr. Murray also has announced that the grand jury will be asked to investigate circumstances in connection with certain paper bearing the name of Judge J. W. Ross, of the federal district court for western Tennessee, found in the bank’s files. The particular strip of rocky coast upon which the summer white house fronts was—until the recent coast guard rum war drove the rum fleet farther to sea—the favorite landing place north of Boston.

REFERENDUM SET ON SEPTEMBER 23 BY COUNCIL VOTE

Vote In Favor of Building Project Is Overwhelming at Monday’s Session.

MAYOR EXPECTED TO GIVE APPROVAL

Referendum on a $2,000,000 bond issue to provide funds for construction of a new city hall for Atlanta was authorized Monday by an almost unanimous vote of city council.

The date of the referendum was set for September 23, the date of the democratic primaries.

The measure goes to the mayor today for final action, but it is generally predicted that he will approve it. It was pointed out Monday that even if the chief executive vetoed the measure, its sponsors can poll enough votes in council to override a disapproval.

Council’s favorable action came after a conference committee, appointed by Mayor Pro Tem. W. B. Hartsfield, returned a unanimously favorable report. Council adopted the report by vote of 21 to 1, and the aldermanic board concurred in the decision, the count being 5 to 3.

20-Story Building.

The contemplated building is a 20-story affair, which, it is estimated, would take care of the city’s needs for many years. According to plans for the new municipal building, which already have been drawn by A. Ten Eyck Brown, prominent architect, it would house all departments of city government, including fire and police headquarters.

The proposed building will contain barracks for firemen and policemen, jails, court rooms, adequate office space for every department, and small individual offices for members of council. It would be one of the finest municipal buildings in the country, and unquestionably the most modern and complete in the entire south.

Location Indicated.

The paper passed Monday authorizing the election makes no provision for location of the building, but council, by requesting the county to donate land immediately east of and adjoining the courthouse, has gone on record as favoring that site. Members of the board of county commissioners are expected to act favorably on the request.

Woodrow Wilson Declared Firm Belief in Evolution

EXPRESSED SURPRISE QUESTION SHOULD BE RAISED

Washington, July 6.—Woodrow Wilson was a firm believer in the theory of evolution.

His statement on the subject, contained in a blunt and characteristic letter published in science, is interesting in view of the opposing opinions of two secretaries of state in his administration who will appear in the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., William Jennings Bryan and Bainbridge Colby.

The letter was addressed to Professor W. C. Curtis, of the University of Missouri, dated August 29, 1922, while Wilson was in retirement at his “S” street home here. Wilson wrote:

“May it not suffice for me to say, in reply to your letter of August 25, that, of course, like every other man of intelligence and education I do believe in organic evolution.”

“It surprises me that at this date such question should be raised.”

That was all.

The subject of evolution was close to Wilson’s heart. The uncle for whom he was named, Rev. James Woodrow, suffered persecution because of his evolution teachings while Wilson was still in his teens.

Dr. Woodrow was dismissed from his chair at the South Carolina College and Theological seminary at Columbia, S. C., and adjudged a heretic. Though he was reinstated a year later, the case was afterward reopened and Dr. Woodrow definitely severed his connection with the school.

Wilson was attending John Hopkins university at the time, and it is recorded that he became highly indignant over the treatment accorded his uncle.

Judge T. Blake Kennedy Declines To Permit New Evidence To Be Submitted Before Appeal.

MAMMOTH COMPANY SUIT IS DISMISSED

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 6.—(AP)—Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy late today denied the motion of government counsel, Albee Pomeroy and Owen J. Roberts, for a rehearing of the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit, on the ground that additional testimony for the government was available.

Judge Kennedy also signed a decree dismissing the lease annulment suit against the Mammoth Oil company, entering the dismissal as of June 19, the date of the decision in the case.

The government counsel sought to reopen the case to present additional testimony on the alleged transfer of Liberty bonds from the Continental Trading Company of Canada for Harry F. Sinclair to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who negotiated the lease for the government.

Case Is Epitomized.

Their motion requested that depositions in connection with the alleged transfer of Liberty bonds be taken in Toronto, Canada, and filed with the court.

Before the trial of the Teapot Dome case, government counsel endeavored to secure these depositions in regard to the alleged Liberty bond transfer. Judge Kennedy granted the government a continuance of the trial from February 26 to March 9 for the securing of this evidence, but the refusal of the H. S. Osier Trading company president to answer part of the questions put to him defeated the government’s move. The Canadian courts have since ruled that he must answer all the questions.

Judge Kennedy in his order dismissing the lease annulment suit against Harry F. Sinclair’s Mammoth Oil company, epitomized the whole case.

Order Held Immaterial.

Judge Kennedy stated that the question of the validity, or invalidity, of the executive order of May 30, 1921, transferring the jurisdiction over all naval reserves from the navy department to the interior department was immaterial.

In the evidence presented by the government in seeking the lease annulment Judge Kennedy finds “nothing to show irregularity or fraud surrounding the transaction or execution of the lease.”

The negotiation and manner of executing the lease, Judge Kennedy stated, “entirely immaterial so far as the lease annulment case is concerned.”

Liquor Boats Stage Parade For Coolidge

President Could See Maneuvers of Destroyers and Rum Chasers.

Swampscott, July 6.—The long-quietest rum fleet was flaunting its gray hulls virtually within sight of the summer white house Monday night while the coast guard mobilized to prevent a spectacular landing almost at the gates of White Court.

Late in the afternoon several coast guard destroyers and smaller rum chasers appeared at sea, maneuvering between the coast and the distant rum fleet. President Coolidge, sitting on his veranda, could see the latest episode in the reign of the enforcement which he himself ordered.

Excitement Reigns.

Although local coast guard officials refused to admit anything extraordinary was under way, circles ashore familiar with the many landings of the past were burning with excitement. Until the practice was broken up by a recent enforcement crusade, Swampscott was the landing place that furnished illicit liquor for the most of New England.

Chief of Police W. L. Quinn, of Swampscott, was recently ousted by local selectmen for alleged connection with the rum landings, and 16 indictments against accused members of the local rum ring are now awaiting hearing. In a campaign to destroy the illicit liquor trade along this rugged coast line before President Coolidge came to take up his summer residence here some $300,000 worth of liquor was seized in a house within a stone’s throw of the president’s house. The particular strip of rocky coast upon which the summer white house fronts was—until the recent coast guard rum war drove the rum fleet farther to sea—the favorite landing place north of Boston.

Even now its rocky contours and numerous islands, capes and bays offer the most difficult stretch of coast to patrol within many miles.

DECISION INSURES OPENING OF TRIAL IN DAYTON FRIDAY

Judge Holds That He Has No Authority To Interfere in Proceedings Started in State Court.

Cookeville, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Refusal of Judge John G. Gore to issue a federal restraining order here this afternoon insured the appearance of John T. Scopes in Rhea county circuit court at Dayton Friday to answer charges of violating the Tennessee statute prohibiting the teaching of theories of evolution in public schools.

John R. Neal, leading counsel for Scopes, said before the decision was rendered that he was certain the case will finally reach the supreme court of the United States and after denial of the petition, announced that he would in the near future apply to Judge Xen Hicks, federal judge for eastern Tennessee, at Chattanooga, for a federal court order in the case.

However, Dr. Neal said that the case will go forward Friday at Dayton. Judge Hicks is now holding court in Detroit. Scopes also said he would go on trial Friday and asked the Associated Press to so inform the people of Dayton.

Judge “Not Justified.”

Judge Gore at the outset of his decision pointed out that the petition showed that the petitioner is under indictment in Rhea county and that the cause is pending undetermined. He stated that he was of the opinion that he was not justified in granting the writ.

Two petitions were presented, one in the name of John T. Scopes and the other in behalf of Robert M. Wilson. Both were directed to Governor Austin Peay, State Attorney General Frank Thompson and A. T. Stewart, attorney general for the eighteenth judicial circuit of Tennessee, as defendants.

Scopes’ petition advanced the claim that he was deprived, under the Tennessee law of liberty and property without due process of law. Wilson’s plea contended that the law deprived him of the right to properly educate his children. Both contended that enforcement of the law is not a valid exercise of the police power of the state.

Referring in his decision to the contention of counsel that it was the court’s duty to grant a temporary restraining order to remain in force until a hearing and determination of an application for an interlocutory decree, Judge Gore said that even if he had the power to grant a temporary restraining order he was of the opinion that he was not justified in granting the writ.

NEW COMMANDER NAMED BY FRENCH

General Stanislas Naulin Has Been Given Supreme Charge of All Operations in Morocco.

Paris, July 6.—General Naulin, commander of the Thirtieth corps of the French army in the Rhone, has been named commander-in-chief of the French army which is fighting the Rifians in Morocco.

Naulin’s appointment followed the refusal of General Guillaumat to take the formidable assignment, which is now filled by Marshal Lyautey.

Premier Painleve issued a reassuring communiqué Sunday night admitting the seriousness of the situation but declaring that the triumph of French arms and the safety of Fez were unquestioned. In other old world capitals, notably London, there has been an increasing pessimism regarding French operations in North Africa. While French communiqués from Marshal Lyautey’s headquarters in Morocco have consistently recounted French gains and victories, non-partisan authorities have been interpreting events in less favorable terms.

WOMEN ARE ORDERED TO EVACUATE TAZA.

Fez, French Morocco, July 6.—Native women and children have been ordered to evacuate Taza as a precaution against possible capture of that city by the Rifians who continue to filter through the French lines in large numbers.

Groups of women and children began to leave Taza Monday night. The evacuation was being conducted in a most orderly fashion. The men remained in the city.

Postal Probe Will Be Held In City Soon

U. S. Committee Coming to Atlanta July 23 To Obtain Data on New Rates.

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Plans were completed today by a joint congressional committee for exhaustive hearings in various parts of the country on the workings of the new postal rates.

The committee is made up of three members of the senate postoffice committee and three members of the house committee and is headed by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire.

It will receive criticisms and suggestions from all classes affected.

Hearings will begin in Washington July 20, after which the committee will be in Atlanta July 23; Philadelphia, July 28 to August 1; New York city from August 3 to August 8; Boston, August 10 to 13; Augusta, Maine, August 14 and 15; Buffalo, N. Y., August 17 and 18; Chicago, August 19 to 26, and St. Paul and Minneapolis, August 27 to 28.

Many protests on the new rates have been received by the subcommittee, a large number contending that first-class rates are inequitable. Attention will be given by the committee to the effect of the rates upon business and it will ask newspaper publishers for their views with regard to rates upon second-class matter.

Pressure is being brought upon the committee for meetings at Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, San Francisco, and other places west of the Mississippi river.

Highway Reform Seen in House Companion Bills

Measures Introduced by Troup County Members Will Come Up in Senate Today.

Two bills which are regarded by a large number of members of the general assembly as the measures which will eventually be passed to reorganize the state highway department, were introduced in the house of representatives Monday and will make their appearance in the senate today.

The bills were introduced by two members from Troup county, with names of eight or ten other members signed to them. One of them—house bill No. 302—creates a fund for construction, maintenance and repair of state highways, while the other, house bill 303, creates a state highway commission of three members and defines their power and duties.

Members whose names were signed to the bills include Daniel and Martin, of Troup; Paschal, of Heard; Davis, of Douglas; Peterson, of Montgomery; Griffin, of Wilkes; Stanford, of Lowndes; Davis, of DeKalb; McCoy, of Coweta, and Camp, of Coweta.

The first of the bills provides that the entire revenues from the fuel oil distributors’ tax and the automobile tax license fees shall be paid into the treasury and constitute the highway fund of the state. Separate accounts of receipts and disbursements of this fund are to be kept by the treasurer. Provision is made, however, that nothing in the new law shall interfere with payment into the treasury of the 1-cent per gallon tax on fuel oil for discount and sale of 5-year warrants of the W. & A. railroad.

The bill classifies all state-aid highways.

France Is Declared Ready To Send War Debt Mission To Confer With Uncle Sam

American Bankers May Be Asked To Finance Funding Proposals Through Loan to Paris.

By THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, July 6.—After long delay, France has directly opened the way for settlement of her four-billion war debt to the United States by notifying Secretary of the Treasury Mellon formally that she is ready to send a mission here to open negotiations. Through the embassy here, the French government asked Mellon to fix a date for the negotiations. The secretary replied that the American debt funding commission would receive the French mission any time prior to August 5 or after August 15. The two-week extension in August was made because the Belgian commission is expected to arrive here to begin negotiations about August 7, and its conference with the debt funding commission are expected to last about two weeks.

Haste Due to Bankers.

France's haste in funding her debt, after long delay and apparent indifference, is regarded as due to pressure from bankers in that country who have let her know that further loans are dependent upon it.

In this connection a high treasury official Monday expressed the opinion that American investors would not support a huge loan to France, proposals for which are reported from Paris, long as the "demand obligation" of the debt was outstanding. This was taken to mean that funding of the debt might open the way to the rehabilitation loan which the French are expected to ask.

As a result of recent developments, eliminated Monday by announcement of French intentions, debt negotiations will be trending on each other's heels here during the next few weeks to consider ways and means of settling their war obligations.

Czechoslovakia Ready. Since the French budget is expected to be completed about July 14, the French mission may be dispatched to the United States shortly after that date, according to opinion of treasury officials. The Belgian negotiations will begin about August 5. The Italians are scheduled to reopen their conference with the debt funding commission during August.

On top of this, it was learned here Monday that Czechoslovakia is ready to begin debt negotiations with the United States immediately. Through her legation here, she has notified the state department informally of her intentions, and will notify Secretary of State Kellogg formally when she returns here, probably within a week. Czechoslovakia, also, has discussed her debt with Secretary Kellogg, through her minister here, who is expected to return to Prague within the next month to discuss settlement with the home government.

The debt of these five countries totals over $7,000,000,000, practically all of the outstanding obligations not yet funded. Great Britain, Poland, Finland, Hungary and Lithuania have funded their debts. Those left are Armenia, Estonia, Greece, Latvia, Rumania, Russia and Austria all with comparatively small obligations. Austria has been granted a postponement of settlement.

The total war debt owed by European nations, approximately $11,000,000,000.

AMERICAN BANKERS MAY PROVIDE LOAN.

Paris, July 6.—American bankers and not the American government, will be asked to provide a further loan to France. The amount of the proposed loan, which will be negotiated during the debt-funding conference scheduled to occur in Washington this summer, probably will be $200,000,000.

76 MORE ARRESTS IN TRAFFIC WAR

Developments Monday in the crusade of Atlanta police against violations of traffic laws resulted in 76 arrests, fines paid into police court amounting to $1,923; two 30-day sentences to the stockade, and five persons held for state courts, the latter on charges of operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor.

The latest war on speeders, reckless drivers and violators of traffic ordinances in general, has had a tendency to reduce automobile accidents, not one serious crash being reported during Monday, police report.

In police court Monday there were 26 cases tried on charges of violating traffic ordinances; 20 were arrested for speeding; 19 for violating boulevard ordinances; 5 for violating the ordinance of 15; 2 for reckless driving; and 2 for operating automobiles while under influence of whiskey.

Heavy Fines Assessed. Twenty-five persons were arrested on charges of violating the ordinance of 15; 20 were arrested for speeding; 19 for violating boulevard ordinances; 5 for violating the ordinance of 15; 2 for reckless driving; and 2 for operating automobiles while under influence of whiskey.

Two Given Sentences. J. G. McJenkins, 25, of Eagan Park, drew a 30-day sentence and was bound over to the state court under a $200 bond. He was arrested Sunday afternoon, following a crash in which his car is said to have rammed a street car, in Decatur street, at the Yonge street intersection.

Joe Terrell, negro, of Butler street, who was one of the two persons to draw stockade sentences, was arrested Sunday afternoon, following a crash in which an automobile he was driving is said to have figured. He also drew a fine of $101.

Practically all cases tried Monday were on charges made Sunday and Monday morning, a majority of the 76 cases made Monday being scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of recorder's court.

000, although official estimates are lacking. The cabinet postponed the selection of the debt-funding commission personnel Monday, announcing that pressure of other business had crowded the debt matter aside for the moment.

It is not likely that Finance Minister Caillaux will go to Washington on charges made Sunday and Monday morning, a majority of the 76 cases made Monday being scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of recorder's court.

HIGHWAY MEET IS PLANNED AT ROME

Constitution Bureau. Rome, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—Good roads enthusiasts from all counties of north Georgia and northeast Alabama will be invited to Rome on July 22 to be guests of the Rome chapter of the National Highway Bureau, which organization it was announced today by Hume Eastman, chairman of the membership committee. The barbecue will be held at Coosa country club. The program will be directed by the good roads group, of which O. L. Daniel is chairman.

Secretary Wyatt Foster is formulating a program that will provide for separate meetings of citizens residing on each highway leading from Rome to the state capital, and the country club for the barbecue where there will be speeches relating to the good roads question as a whole.

Improvement has been made in the principal activity of the Rome chamber of commerce during the summer months, while other projects are being put into shape for activity next fall and winter.

Bible School.

Rome, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—Daily vacation Bible school is being conducted at Maple street community house under the direction of Rev. H. P. Joyner, pastor of the Maple street Baptist church, opened this morning with 66 present. The school is denominational and children from all parts of the city and from churches of all denominations are invited to attend.

This is the second school conducted at the community house. It is planned to conduct a cooking and sewing class later there will be a course in teacher training.

Racer Recovered.

Rome, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—James "Rabbit" Penn, who was injured in a fall from his machine in a motorcycle race at Legion Memorial park Saturday afternoon, was sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital Monday. He received painful cuts and bruises but no internal injuries.

BRILLIANT STARS IN "GYPSY BARON"

tenor fill the great reaches of the auditorium with a volume that swells and re-echoes in magnificent volume. Thomas Conkey, baritone, has another of those dashing officer parts which he seems specially created to fill. His reciting voice in the second act is one of the high spots of the performance.

Rudolf Marwick has another fine characterization, this time of a villain, brooding and tri-cornered hat, that he sings with finished workmanship, while Charles Schenck again proves his value in a small part splendidly done.

Robert Pitkin, chief comedian of the company, does not have as much work this week, but he extracts every atom of humor out of his role, and his splenic German accent forces laughter in any event.

Dumme and Yago Lauded.

Tracy Dumme, the vivacious, is not quite so hard-worked this week as he has two splendid numbers, one a solo in the first act, "A Face Will Soon Entrance," and the other a duet with Mary Anderson in the third act, "To Vienna."

The contralto, Anne Yago, whose marvelous voice has been one of the sings with the full power of her ripe, mellow voice throughout and her work as the old Gypsy woman is an important factor in the success of the performance.

But, to truthfully tell the secret of the delight of the entire performance is one must, perhaps, go back to the opening paragraph and name again the prime, duet, "A Face Will Soon Entrance," which has been said, was engaged primarily because of the role of "Saffi," in this opera, demanded a truly great soprano voice, and she possessed the voice to exactly fit the score. Monday night the audience which gathered for the premiere of "The Gypsy Baron" understood fully the truth of this claim. Yago offers to Atlanta this week a truly rare in the musical season and the lover of music who misses her in this opera is missing one of the outstanding events of the week.

"The Gypsy Baron" is an opera replete with melody and charm. It is new to this community but it illustrates perhaps more forcefully than any other work, how delightful opera written according to the standards of grand opera, but written to light and graceful music, with sufficient interpolation of genuine comedy, can be a regulation "happy ending" can be.

The music by Strauss, carries a rollicking glamor throughout. The famous composer of "The Blue Danube" and this just what marvels of melody and rhythm is capable of and though the Strauss of waltz fame is ever sounding throughout the score, it is at all times a work of genuine genius, ranking as real opera, though ranking just as truly as light opera at its highest expression.

Paul Eisler at Best. Conductor Paul Eisler has his best work of the season with his best orchestra Monday night. Perhaps the type of music suited his temperament better, perhaps he found more opportunity for the tonic of the master's baton in this than in the other scores, but whatever the reason it is a sureness of touch, surpassing the best he had previously given us.

As said, this is the most tuneful of all operas on the summer list. Certainly it is more appealing to musicians than any of the others. It is equally certain that it will continue the remarkable record established by the preceding three weeks of increasing audiences at each performance. Atlanta has been learning ever since the season opened just how fine this type of opera entertainment is and as the nightly performances of "The Gypsy Baron" undoubtedly will do its part in enhancing this steadily growing popularity of the summer entertainment.

DEFENSE DAY TEST DECLARED "SUCCESS"

Indianapolis, Ind., July 6.—The national defense day test of July 4, considering the shortness of the time for preparation, was "a success" and reports from all parts of the country to national headquarters of the American legion here indicate that the legion cooperated heartily. National Commander James A. Drain announced today.

Whether the day should be made an annual event, however, depends upon conclusions to be drawn by national army officers and legion officials from a study of the results of this year and last, Commander Drain said.

"I am convinced," he announced, "that there should be an annual stock-taking of our means of national defense, but how that shall be done can be determined only after the facts are in hand and carefully analyzed."

Dr. Jennings Is Declared Leader In Evolution Work

FIRST TO CONTROL PROCESS AMONG LIVING THINGS

Baltimore, July 6.—(Special.)—Dr. Herbert Spencer Jennings, professor and director of zoological laboratory at Johns Hopkins university here, is the "first" actually to see and control the process of evolution among living things.

The statement is contained in a newly published report of biological activities at Johns Hopkins and is considered by scientists at the institution as being of special significance in view of the coming trial of John T. Scopes, charged with the teaching of evolution in violation of the Tennessee statutes.

"The evidence of evolution," the report declares, "has been read in the rocks and the structures of plants and animals, but under the microscope Dr. Jennings was able to follow evolution not as a theory but as a fact, through the production of new cells that changed hereditary characteristics. All together we find that even independently of any mating process diversity of stocks is being produced but most slowly and gradually."

"Intensified study," Dr. Jennings declared, "reveals that hereditary characteristics do become changed by external conditions. Through such diversities continuing for great numbers of generations single stocks, uniform in their hereditary characteristics gradually differentiate into many fairly differing hereditary features. Again the process is gradual, or by steps so small that single ones are imperceptible."

"In higher organisms the state of knowledge on this point appears less satisfactory. But the evidence so far as it goes indicates that the processes here are in agreement with those in lower organisms."

"Apparent diversities in external agents may, under conditions which seem merely met, so modify the germ cells that they produce organisms with changed hereditary characteristics. All together we find that even independently of any mating process diversity of stocks is being produced but most slowly and gradually."

SPARKS COLLEGE ASKS $300,000 FOR NEEDS

Sparks, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—The executive board of the board of trustees of Sparks college, headed by Dr. S. G. Ehrhridge, in special session here yesterday unanimously endorsed the move to launch a campaign for $300,000, to provide funds for the estimated needs of the college in carrying out the program for enlargement recently inaugurated.

The enlargement program, which is made imperative by the demands on the part of the trustees, the alumni and friends of the institution throughout this section of the state, is in response to the need in this section of a great church school.

Sparks college was established by the Methodist church, under the name of Sparks Collegiate Institute, in 1902 as a district high school. As such it was a pioneer and had a wonderful record. It became a training center for ministers, missionaries and teachers. Through these representatives the school has widened its influence and is probably unsurpassed by any other school of like grade and organization in the south. It was raised to the standard of a junior college during the Christian education drive of the Methodist church and since that time has been able to do a greater work.

The trustees, friends and alumni of Sparks college are united in this drive for a greater Sparks college and express the confidence that the sum asked for will quickly be subscribed during the allotted time.

Nicholson Builds Girls' Clubhouse

Nicholson, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—A movement was started during the past year by the home economics department of the agricultural college of Athens, of which Miss Mary E. Crowell is head, to build permanent homes for the club girls over the state. Miss Lucy Wood, who was then county home demonstration agent for Jackson county, ably assisted in the work by putting on contests relative to the building and equipping of kitchens of county districts. Largely through her efforts Jackson county won the distinction of erecting the first permanent camp in the state. Today this work is being continued by Miss Reba Adams, county home demonstration agent for Jackson county.

The woman's club of Nicholson fostered a local campaign in interest of the work here, ably assisted by the club girls, for the construction of a district camp at Nicholson. This movement met the approval of quite a number of citizens, who contributed to the cause. It was decided that an old fashioned log cabin would prove ideal so this proposition was presented to the public and the supply of logs and other material were gratefully tendered the cause by various landlords. Permission was granted by the school trustees for the erection of the building on the school grounds.

Thursday of last week the interest in the work seemed to reach the climax when a large number of people assembled on the ground with their working clothes on, and the construction of the building was begun free. It proved one of the most harmonious days in the history of the city, since the work was carried forward so steadily.

The work was not completed Thursday and workers volunteered their services again on Friday when another day was put in. Each day dinner was served to the workers. The building is not been entirely completed but it is hoped to soon have it finished and open for the club girls of Jackson county.

WALLER MAY ASK CHANGE OF VENUE

Fayetteville, Ga., July 6.—(Special.)—John Waller, indicted as accessory before the fact in the death of James P. Langston, rural mail carrier, who was killed while delivering mail, in October, 1922, will be placed on trial here Tuesday morning at a special term of Fayette superior court.

Ora Whittle and Oscar Dutton, tried last week on a charge of the murder of Langston, were exonerated and received life sentences.

It is hinted that attorneys for Waller may ask a change of venue.

J. W. and Benny McGee Monday were ordered held on a misdemeanor charge of attempting to defraud the state last week of "witness fees." It is charged by Emmett Owen, solicitor general, that the McGees offered to give testimony at the trial of Whittle and Dutton, but upon investigation he believed the evidence was "framed" by them, and that they only desired to collect fees from the state, and the solicitor ordered the men held.

James P. Langston, rural mail carrier from Fairburn, who was killed while delivering mail, was found dead beside his car more than two years ago. As nothing was missing from the car, it was developed that robbery was not the motive, and officers worked upon the theory that Langston was killed through mistake, that another man, said to have "turned up" moonshiners, was the man sought. Basing their search on that theory, officers a month ago arrested Whittle, Dutton and Waller in connection with the crime.

A special session of the grand jury indicted Whittle and Dutton for the murder and Waller for accessory before the fact.

Judge W. E. H. Searcy, Jr., will preside at the trial Tuesday.

$2,000,000 BOND PROJECT FAVORED BY COUNCIL

derman Williamson, Ford and Moon, and Councilmen Chosewood, Knight and York, brought back a unanimous favorable report for only a few minutes of consideration.

Council then voted overwhelmingly to adopt the committee's report, with Councilman Ed H. Inman casting the dissenting vote. In the aldermanic board, Aldermen Hartsfield, Moon, Armstrong, Buchanan and Ford voted for the election, while Aldermen Duval, Couch and McLendon opposed it.

No Tax Increase Seen.
Advocates of the bond issue pointed out that it will not necessitate any increase in taxes as rental from the present city hall and the unused portion of the new building will provide sufficient money to pay sinking fund and interest.

Councilman Harry York announced at Monday's meeting that an offer had been received from a local realtor to pay rentals aggregating $7,000,000 on a 99-year lease for the present city hall property, located at Marietta and Forsyth street, or an average annual rental of approximately $20,070.

Councilman C. G. Allen, sponsor of the measure, and who has been active in efforts to build a new city hall ever since he has been in council, stated that practically every real estate dealer in Atlanta has been conferred with, and that the consensus of opinion is that about $100,000 in rentals could be obtained yearly from the present city hall.

Benefits Pointed Out.
In addition, he explained, there will be considerable office space in the new building that will not be needed for several years and which could be rented to private individuals. Proceeds from that space and from renting of the present city hall would more than sufficient to meet payments on sinking funds and interest, making the new building practically without any cost to the taxpayers.

Sale of the present fire department headquarters on Alabama street and police barracks on Decatur street would supply a considerable additional amount which could be applied to the cost of constructing the new building.

Councilmen York and Vaughn also spoke for the measure, while Alderman Duval opposed it.

Passage of the measure by council and concurrence of the aldermanic board is accepted by advocates of the new building as virtual assurance that it will be constructed within a reasonably short time. Approval of the mayor is regarded as certain, and friends of the proposition point out that several large delegations of citizens already have requested the mayor and council members to build the new city hall.

Election Date Changed.

The original measure called for the election on September 3, but Councilman Allen asked that it be set back 20 days so as to fall on the same date as the city democratic primaries. He also obtained passage of a measure providing $150 for advertising the election.

Alderman J. Allen Couch opposed the bond issue in the aldermanic board, and following the meeting he issued a statement to the effect that he will ask the people to vote against it. "I think that the whole thing is a dream," he said, "and do not believe that the city can realize as much revenue from the present city hall as is claimed. I do not believe that it is right to ask the public to vote for bonds to build a city hall when they do not even know where the building is to be located, what kind it is to be, or what it will cost. I think that instead the more sensible way is to be replacing some of the portable school houses with permanent buildings."

CITY MAY REQUIRE CHURCHES TO PAY HIGHER TAX RATE

If Mayor Walter A. Sims signs a measure passed Monday by city council, all churches will be forced to pay taxes on a full assessment, as the present measure provides for payment on only one-fourth of the assessed valuation.

Council members explained that churches and other organizations are forced to pay full amount of taxes and stated that churches should be placed in the same category.

2 NEW AIR ROUTE PROPOSALS WOULD INCLUDE ATLANTA

Preliminary plans for establishment of two aerial routes on which Atlanta would be a central point were made public Monday when a request for information as to what assistance could be rendered by the city was made in a communication to the mayor and council by George Williams, general manager of the Williams Aero-Traffic company.

One of the proposed routes would extend from Winnipeg, Canada, through Minneapolis and Chicago to Atlanta, and the other would run from Montreal to New York, Washington and Atlanta.

From Atlanta, one route would extend to New Orleans, Dallas, Albuquerque and Los Angeles, while the other would go to Florida, stopping at Tampa, Palm Beach and Miami.

The paper was referred to the air committee of council, of which Alderman W. B. Hartsfield is chairman, for further consideration.

COUNCIL SEEKS RIGHT TO LEASE OLD WATER PLANT

If the legislature passes a charter amendment approved by city council Monday the city will have the right to lease or sell any part of the old water-works plant near Lakewood.

The city attempted to lease part of the property to an industrial corporation several months ago and when negotiations were practically complete it was found that under the charter such action was illegal.

POLICE WILL KEEP REWARDS EARNED, COUNCIL DECIDES

In the future, rewards earned by members of the police department for recovery of stolen automobiles, apprehension of criminals and other sources will go to the policemen, according to an ordinance passed by city council Monday.

Time ago council passed a law under which half of rewards were given to the Police Relief association. The change back to the original system was proposed by Alderman W. Armstrong and recommended by the police committee.

TRAFFIC BUREAU REESTABLISHMENT MOVE IN COUNCIL

Proposed reestablishment of the traffic bureau of the police department was seen in a request for permission to add two police sergeants to the force and place them in charge of traffic under charges in the department Monday by the police committee.

Councilman Ed H. Inman, chairman of the committee, previously had stated that he favored an accident prevention bureau but thought that it should be in charge of two sergeants, equipped with motorcycles, who would keep the city and keep the other traffic men at work.

The request was referred to the finance committee for consideration. The old traffic bureau, which was under direction of a captain and lieutenant, was abolished by council early last year, and the charges had been made that a captain at the head of the department caused friction with the captain of the watch on duty at that time.

MOVE TO EXTEND LIMITS OF CITY MADE IN COUNCIL

A charter amendment providing for extension of the city limits to at least 200 feet beyond any street or road now in the city for touching the boundaries was approved by city council Monday, and sent to the legislature with the request that it be passed.

As a movement, it was stated, will be made to facilitate laying out and making other public improvements in many cases now streets mark the limits and it is impossible to extend the line for civic improvements.

LOWER SPEED LIMIT FOR ADJACENT SECTION IS ASKED

A request that the speed limit be lowered to 15 miles per hour on Lexington street, Catherine street and Maryland avenue, in Adjacent park section, was introduced in city council Monday by Alderman C. M. Ford.

Ford explained that every precaution is necessary to safeguard lives of the many children playing in the park. The paper was sent to the traffic committee for consideration.

HIGHER SALARIES FOR MOTORCYCLE POLICE REQUESTED

A salary increase of $10 per month for all motorcycle policemen was asked in a resolution presented in city council Monday by Councilman Ed H. Inman, chairman of the committee.

There was no discussion regarding the measure, and it was referred to the finance committee for further investigation.

LIGHTS ON AUTOS, OTHER VEHICLES, NOW NECESSARY

Driving automobiles or other vehicles without lights, even in the white light districts, was prohibited by an amendment to the traffic ordinance, passed Monday by city council. Under the old law a technician permitted both parking and driving of machines without lights in those sections but the amendment, while allowing continued parking without lights, will make driving without both front and tail lights punishable by a fine.

$500 Appropriation Voted for Big Labor Day Parade Here

An appropriation of $500 as the city's share in the industrial parade to be held Monday was voted Monday by city council and approved by the aldermanic board. The paper now goes to the mayor for final action. It was introduced by Alderman J. Allen Couch.

BARNES REELECTED WEIGHTS INSPECTOR

J. J. Barnes Monday morning was reelected inspector of weights and measures for the city by the police committee of council. Mr. Barnes has held the position for several years and his reelection was unanimous.

FEDERAL PRISON ASKS FOR WATER SUPPLY

A request that the city furnish the federal penitentiary with water with which to sprinkle lawns in front of the prison was introduced in council Monday by Councilman C. L. Chosewood. It was sent to the water committee for consideration.

NEW TRUNK SEWER CONTRACT AWARDED

The contract for construction of the West End trunk sewer, one of the largest to be built in Atlanta this year, was awarded to C. C. Case by action of city council Monday. The new sewer will cost approximately $32,000.

PAN-AMERICAN TREATY MAKES SLOW PROGRESS

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Slow progress is being made at present in the negotiations between the United States and Pan-America for the amplification and revision of the treaty of 1903. Following the first conference between state department officials and the Pan-American delegation at which the Pan-American contentions were presented and explained, no further work has been done by Pan-America from the department.

In the meantime, however, Minister Affairs has been having numerous informal conversations with state department officials.

FREE TEXT BOOKS AGAIN LOST

A final effort to eliminate at least some of the free school textbooks purchased for Atlanta students by the city was lost Monday when city council voted down a charter amendment which would have provided free books for only children who cannot afford to purchase their own.

An attempt to eliminate all free textbooks was defeated in council at the last meeting by an overwhelming vote. The measure introduced Monday by the finance committee was defeated, 16 to 5.

Alderman W. B. Duval, chairman of the finance committee of council, declared that textbooks are costing the city more than $100,000 per year, and that the amount will be increased during the next few years. He explained that the books are only for those students who cannot afford to buy them.

Alderman J. Allen Couch and Councilman T. S. Slattery and T. C. Morris were chief opponents of the measure.

A committee composed of Councilmen Slattery and Pennington and Alderman Duval was named to confer with the board of education in an effort to eliminate some of the least necessary books now in use.

The school department has asked $109,126.31 with which to purchase new books and replace old ones, but when Dr. Duval explained that the city cannot afford to do this, council authorized the board of education to purchase the books, and went on record as promising to pay for them out of next year's revenues.

SOLONS TO HEAR GOVERNOR'S SPEECH

for 10 o'clock this morning at the right of the speaker's desk in the house of representatives, and she has also announced that Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock a public hearing will be held by her committee in the hall of the house of representatives.

This is the measure to permit the city of Atlanta to improve property in the vicinity of the state-owned Union depot building viaducts over the railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue. Enhancement in value which will secure to state property the capital property two blocks south of the tracks—will probably cause this measure to pass with little opposition, it is anticipated.

STEAMER NAMED FOR MAN WHO LOST LIFE IN NORMAN

Memphis, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Announcement was made here today that the government steamer Monitor has been named W. M. Gardner, in honor of the late Major Gardner, of the engineers' reserve corps, who lost his life when the steamer Norman sank in the Mississippi river off Coahoma Light on May 8 with a loss of 23 lives. Major Gardner had been connected with government river activities for more than 30 years.

The Monitor was the first vessel to go to the aid of the Norman when the excursion boat went down.

U. S. SAILOR KILLS CHINESE STRIKER

Shanghai, July 6.—(AP)—A Chinese, about to attack a municipal constable from behind, was shot and killed here Saturday evening by a sailor from the United States destroyer Macleish, who came to the rescue of the constable.

The shooting occurred during trouble at one of the cotton mills involved in the present strike. Hundreds of Chinese assembled outside the mill had threatened to burn it unless some of their comrades who had been arrested were released. A constable then arrested one of the leaders of the mob who was urging the coolies to advance on the mill.

A companion of the arrested leader was about to spring on the back of the constable when he was shot by an American sailor, whose name was given as Dizik.

As it now reads, the bill provides only for abolition of 10 of the 12 schools, allowing the first and second district schools to remain. Winifred Toombs, introduced a bill Monday to abolish the Bowden State Normal and Industrial college.

Miller, of Muscogee, introduced a bill which would prohibit sale of ethyl gasoline in Georgia, while Rivers, of Lanier, is author of a measure that would appropriate all oil inspection fees about $225,000 per annum to the common school equalization fund.

The Georgia workmen's compensation law would be repealed under a bill introduced by Senator W. A. Harris, while Hooper, of Fulton, introduced a measure to provide for incorporation and supervision of credit unions, to define their rights, powers and duties.

Burglary of residences would be made a crime punishable with life imprisonment.

POLITICAL FEUD LEADS TO TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Corpus Christi, Texas, July 6.—(AP) A political feud of long standing between two factions is believed to have inspired the shooting here last night which took the lives of three peace officers and wounded two other men.

Paul McAllister, a deputy state game, fish and oyster commissioner, and formerly of Beaumont, C. M. Bissbee, constable, and R. R. Bledsoe, deputy constable, were killed. R. MacMurray, of Three Rivers, Texas, and George Ryder, of San Diego, Texas, were seriously wounded.

The five men appear to have met by accident at the entrance to a road house near the city and there the shooting began. McAllister was killed on the spot. Bledsoe and Bissbee died several hours later.

Bledsoe or McAllister are believed to have started the firing. They were found lying in the road only a few feet from each other. McAllister had been shot through the heart. His revolver had been fired only once. Bledsoe had three bullet wounds.

FIRST LADY TAKES DIP IN OCEAN NEAR SWAMPSCOTT

Swampscott, Mass., July 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge took her first dip in the ocean today since she and the president came here for the summer.

With Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, wife of the president's naval aide, she enjoyed a plunge in a pool in front of White Court which is protected somewhat from the surf by rocks.

Mrs. Coolidge is an ardent follower of outdoor life, usually walking several miles daily. A rise in the temperature today gave her her first opportunity to take to the water, which is still fairly cool.

Some neighboring children were at the same time, but the beach at this point is practically private. Several service men, and a couple of photographers who had learned of Mrs. Coolidge's plan.

The president continues to confine his exercises to walking, getting in a few miles' daily, and it is doubted whether he will follow Mrs. Coolidge's lead.

Keep a close watch on your children and have their eyes tested often. A slight complication that could perhaps be easily corrected while the child is young may mean a hindrance all through life if neglected. Children seldom know when there is trouble. Children do not object to wearing glasses that are comfortable and becoming.

LEAGUE ASKS DRIVE AGAINST COMMUNISTS

Geneva, July 6.—(AP)—A petition asking collective international action against communism has been sent to all governments by the "international entente against the third international."

This organization, with headquarters at Geneva, represents anti-bolshevik groups in 21 nations.

The petition presents communism as "a grave peril threatening to engulf all countries" and pleads for international cooperation against that menace. It urges prompt action "before communism has further opportunity to grip the vitals of national life, national security and national institutions," and proposes agreements against the "Third International," to prevent preparation in one country for revolutionary aggressions in another.

It also suggests that soviet emissaries, legations and Red Cross missions be "prevented from abusing diplomatic privileges or hospitality by secretly propagating communism in the countries where they are received."

The petition is signed by Theodore Aubert as president of the permanent bureau of the "International Entente against the Third International." Aubert is a Geneva lawyer who defended Maurice Conrad.

GOTHAM LIBRARIAN LAUDS NEWSPAPERS FOR UPLIFT WORK

Newark, N. J., July 6.—(AP)—John Colman Dana, librarian of the Newark public library, today made public a statement criticizing the program of the American Library association, opening its annual convention in Seattle, Wash., today for making reference in its scheduled discussions to the public press, which he termed the greatest and most potent of all educational influences in this country.

"Truly," said the statement, "they give a Hamlet-like drama on world education and are keeping before the eyes of the stage for them to discuss the newspapers as a social influence and of course do not discuss the thousands of other daily, weekly and monthly journals which supply the daily instruction work."

Dana was president of the American Library association in 1925 and 1926 and was president of the Special Libraries association in 1929 and 1930.

NOW FOR BUSINESS.

The Georgia general assembly, convening as it does the last week in June, cannot be expected to get down to real business until after the 4th of July holiday.

The days preceding the holiday recess are usually fruitful in getting acquainted, while the preiding officers work on the committee assignments, and in getting many of the preliminary details out of the way.

Good progress in this respect has been made this year.

The holiday was an unusually enjoyable one for a great many of the members.

The 4th of July having fallen on a Saturday, it permitted a week-end holiday that was refreshing, and more than ordinarily restful.

The members are back in their seats, therefore, better prepared for the duties and the responsibilities before them. The committee assignments have been completed and officially announced. Committee work—the most important in the early stages of the legislative session—can now proceed without hindrance.

All in all the conditions are propitious for the fifty days of the session that remain to be constructively resourceful.

There is much to be done—much that must be done if Georgia is to keep step with her sister states in education, in highway construction, in stabilizing her revenue laws, so that industry may not be frightened, in seeing that the great agricultural interests may be strengthened, and in providing that home-seekers may be properly invited to help develop the wonderful resources of the state along many pressing lines.

Now to business! That should be—and no doubt it will be—the slogan of every member of the assembly. The elimination of lost motion, the harmonizing of conflicting currents of thought, the "give and take" disposition which alone can comfort difference—all working with the great idea of Georgia's welfare at heart—those are the elements that must guide the members, if this assembly shall make the record for progress that 3,000,000 people are so earnestly hoping.

THE HOLIDAY TOLL.

The revelry that attends the 4th of July holiday demanded about its usual death toll throughout the nation, the collapse of the Pickwick dance club building in Boston contributing the one most outstanding tragedy to the list. Of the entire number of lives sacrificed, however, automobile accidents on the whole led the list. They always do, and the overwhelming majority of them are entirely preventable.

Of the complete holiday season death toll this section of the south showed less than any other section. In Atlanta, as always, the week-end brought its usual number of accidents. Considering the thousands of local automobiles in commission, due not only to the holiday but to the hearts call for the great open spaces, the accidents were not above the normal average. And yet certainly too many.

Perhaps the most remarkable record was made in the Blue Ridge mountain highway crossing at Neel's Gap from Cleveland to Blairsville. From 8,000 to 10,000 people attended the opening of this highway on Saturday. There were in the neighborhood of 2,000 automobiles from heavy trucks to light roadsters. Every vehicle carried a capacity load. Hundreds of the drivers had never negotiated a mountain road before. And yet there was not an accident—not a life nor a limb sacrificed to the unique mountain-side congestion. It is a record to be proud of, and reflects particular credit upon the perfect manner in which the good men and women of the mountain counties who had the celebration in charge had organized their patrol and parking system. It is a record of credit to the drivers of the cars who exercised unusual care, with clear heads, not only to protect themselves, but others from becoming victims of recklessness. There was no reckless driving on the occasion, and every other detail is reported to have been consummated with rare skill and to the enjoyment of all.

Georgia is sorely in need of a code of sane and reasonable safety laws, and this assembly will be called upon during its session to enact the same.

THE COMMITTEES.

A study of the legislative committee assignments announced Monday by President Ennis and Speaker Neill will reveal that unusually strong and impressive selections have generally been made. That is to say, chairmanships have been apparently well placed, and members assigned to the committees in line, as nearly as humanly possible, with work to which they are personally peculiarly fitted.

In the selection of Representative Dykes, of Dooley, as vice chairman of the rules committee, one of the ablest young men in the house has been signally honored. He is an earnest, honest, vigorous member, and will fairly and conscientiously expedite the business of the house. This position is one of great power in the last 14 days of the session, as it makes the calendar during that period.

In the selection of Representative Barrett, of Stephens, as chairman of the appropriations committee, the selection goes to a northeast Georgia veteran of the assembly, who has long since proven himself a strong and influential member.

Judge Jones, of Meriwether, retains his old position as head of the constitutional amendment committee of the house—a position he has long held creditably and well.

Representative Morton Turner, of Brooks, has always been a leader in highway legislation and as chairman of the public highways committee, with John I. Kelly, of Gwinnett, the vice chairman, the committee work will be in earnest and fair hands.

Representative Roy Harris, of Jefferson, is one of the young men who has made a mark, and as chairman of the ways and means committee will have an opportunity for great constructive service.

Representative J. D. Weaver, of Terrell, as chairman of general agriculture, No. 1, is an exceptionally happy choice. He knows the legislative needs of the farmer. He was formerly president of the Georgia Farmers' union and is one of the large and successful planters of his section.

In J. W. Culppepper, of Fayette, the general judiciary, No. 1, will have a chairman who is also a veteran in the service, and is one of the strong men of the house. Representative Hyman, of Washington county, is a strong chairman for judiciary, No. 2.

No man in Georgia has done more for conservation than Representative Stone, of Union. It is fitting that he should head that committee, and his further usefulness will be impressed upon the state.

Other chairmanships are along the same strong lines. Representative Davis, of Floyd county, is a good leader for the education committee. Griner, of Ben Hill, is an excellent selection to head the committee on corporations. And so on down through the list.

In the upper house Senator Hendrix, of the thirty-fifth district, was made chairman of the committee on municipal governments, and Senator Guess, of the thirty-fourth district, was made chairman of the W. & A. railroad committee. Both are excellent selections. Miss Kempton, of Fulton, is the able house chairman of the W. & A. committee.

The appropriations committee is headed by Senator Herman De La Perriere, of the thirty-third district—a strong and useful member. Senator Collier, of the twenty-second, was placed at the head of the finance committee, and Senator Sapp, of the forty-third, was made vice chairman of the rules committee.

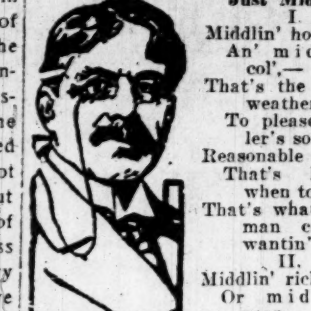

Among the other important senate committee chairmanships are: Agriculture, Senator Hughes, of the twenty-first; banks and banking, Senator Hutcheson, of the thirty-ninth; constitutional amendments, Senator Dixon, of the seventeenth; counties and county matters, Senator Boykin, of the thirty-seventh.

Senators Perkins, of twenty-fourth, and Moye, of the eleventh, are chairmen of general judiciary committees, Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, and Senator Albert Foster, of the twenty-eighth, heads the special judiciary committee.

These are all outstanding members, and are well fitted for their assignments. As in the house the assignments throughout are good. Every member will enter upon the legislative duties today with a keener interest, and a more definite plan for service. It is now for the record. The state is watching.

Just From Georgia

Just Middledin'.
Middledin' it.
An' middlin' col'—
That's the sort o' weather.
To please a feller's soul:
Reasonable thunder
That's what a human creature wantin'!

Middledin' rich,
Or middlin' poor.

But no wolf howlin'!
At a midnight doer:
Happy little children
Playin' on the floor—
That's what a human creature wantin'!

Talking about busy farmers, the Atchison (Kan.) Globe quotes one 'em as saying: "I'm cutting wheat with one hand, plowing corn with the other, and putting up hay with my feet."

The Infirm Earth.
"The earthquake," says The Albany Herald, "impresses the man with sense of utter helplessness. Buildings tumble about him or on him, and the very earth which has typified the extreme of strength and solidity quakes and twists and rumbles like a drunken thing. He is appalled and stupefied, and all things about him seem unreal."

The Holdfast People.
Thunder shook the ol' shack down.
Earthquake swallered the lan'.
But they didn't make tracks from the ol' home town.

That shows the makin' of a Man!
Low an' high, with a frownin' sky.
They said: "It's the Providence plan."

All in the weather! We'll pull through together!

"The people are watching with eager interest the solemn setting down to business," says Editor McIntosh. And of course, that should mean catching up with a lot of it.

From a Legislative Journal.
Already we have discussed three barbecues, four get-together dinners, eleven preparatory lunches and nine informal business breakfasts, and the session is almost too young to be christened. Evidently what Atlanta means to do to this legislature is a plenty!

To One From Home.
(A Twilight Prayer, by Frank Gale, in "Poems of Faith, Toil and Love.")
Oh, Thou who givest dreams
To children in the night,
Through all the gloom, oh, give to him
A vision of the light.

Dear Father, shield him safe, I pray,
From sorrows and alarms.
And if he heart be fired tonight,
Ah, fold him in Thine arms!

"When he brags about running things at home," says The Times-Enterprise, "credit him with mowing the lawn, or beating the carpet."

The Cow Wins.
"If we had to choose between a cow and an automobile," says Shannon, in his Commerce News, "we would hesitate to take the cow. The cow is the one we have anything against the automobile nor that we do not like to ride in the things. In many instances the cow is better for the cow than the automobile. In many others, conveniences. In others, luxuries. They are here to stay. But you can't feed a family on automobiles. Good riding habits is better for children than gasoline. Cows never run into a ditch and wound or kill the owner."

Today's Talk

THE EXTRA EFFORT.
Few of us will ever attain but a fraction of the results we hope to achieve.

The most satisfactory life, after all, is the expression of what a small number of fragments of success and happiness represent.

The largest part of our energies is either wasted or else left to wither unused.

We must be constantly calling upon our will to do just a little better—to make the extra effort. Half the world works around in its sleep. A lack of stimulus closes the eyes to our finest possibilities.

But we all may go very far—if we will. It's like the second wind of a runner. Just at the moment when he thinks that he is all "winded" he gets that second wind which carries him to his victory.

Everything that is allowed to lie dormant, must through the necessity of nature's truest law, crumble and die. But even that which is allowed to die is not lost. Its form passes into some useful channel in the great scheme of things and is finally made useful.

Success is made up of extra efforts, often made under duress or the grip of Stimulus.

Stimulus, however, creates something—a desire to grow, to do better, to excel, to rise, to enlarge and to be of substantial use in the world.

"Excitement, ideas, and efforts," says William James, "are what carry us over the dam."

And once over the dam, our plans and purposes are carried far by their own momentum.

Today you must make an extra effort. Tomorrow you must make a greater effort. And the sum of days will mark your character as a man or woman.

Thinks Mr. Inman Did Not Mean What He Said

Dear Mr. Howell: I noticed in the papers a statement purported to have been made by Mr. E. H. Inman, concerning the police officers in Atlanta making arrests for violation of traffic laws. He further stated that unless more arrests were made they would be requested to hand in their badges.

If a statement is true, I can hardly believe Mr. Inman thought seriously before he made it.

I am not endeavoring to shield those who are violators of our traffic laws, but I do believe that a statement of this kind should be corrected.

It is natural for men to obey the orders of those in authority. They realize their position is at stake, and consequently, they are liable to go to extremes in order to hold their jobs on the force.

Mr. E. H. Inman will see the error he has made and that he will promptly call a meeting of his committee and suggest to our officers, while we want to see our laws enforced, we want the situation handled with judgment and discretion, and not merely make cases, because fear.

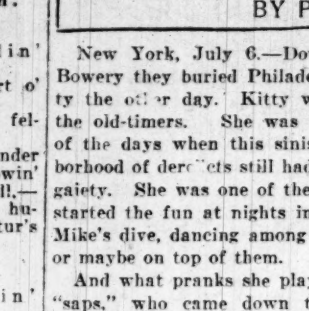

If they fail to do so they would lose their job.

Yours very truly,
Atlanta, Ga., July 2, 1925.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, July 6.—Down in the Bowery they buried Philadelphia Kitty the other day. Kitty was one of the old-timers. She was a survivor of the days when this sinister neighborhood of derelicts still had a dash of gaiety. She was one of the girls who started the fun at nights in "Nigger Mike's" dive, dancing among the tables or maybe on top of them.

And what pranks she played on the "saps," who came down to have a big night in the Bowery. The street is yet full of tales about her. How she fooled the rich guys and made them cough up. Kitty was a full of life and full of joy. Gay, amid the sordid surroundings of whispering shadows of despair, midnight would find her at "The Slide" or the "Sylvan Divan," two notorious hang-outs of twenty years ago. Tripping lightly between the tables, laughing with over-convivial companions.

And when the gaslights of the deserted streets were blurring with the coming of a sickly daylight, her voice could be heard, raw and hard, from even lower dives, where pitiful wrecks from the storm of life were trying to dull bitter memories of blasted careers.

She was the friend of cops and ward bosses. Many a fugitive, slinking from the police, haunted by evil dreams, would come to Kitty. She hid them away from prying eyes and kept them safe for months or years in some kennel of the tenements or some back garret.

Kitty was a product of the streets, typical of the old East Side. She sinned a great deal, but she also loved much.

As the priest waded his censors and chanted his death mass over the plain coffin in the little chapel I thought of the Street of Forgotten Men, its glamor and its tinsel, its romance and its gruesomeness and was glad to step out in the bright light of day.

I met Tex Rickard, the fight promoter. Of course, I thought I would have to talk about the ring and battling punch peddlers. But no, the conversation turned to Florida orange groves and Georgia flowers. With Michael Arlen I had hoped to discuss the fine points of English literature, but instead we played poker, and I lost.

Broadway Meanderings: Noah Beery, who can play the lobo or hum so well, gave a selection of Beethoven on the piano at a soiree the other night. Sinclair Lewis on his first trip could not lay his hands on a single German who had killed a Belgian baby. New York policemen hand you a printed card when they catch you jay-walking. It's a set of safety rules, not a summons. Pavlova gets $2,000 each time she dances. Greta Nissen, the new Nordic blonde film star, sure is the honeybee's noze. A riot on the Koshermarket—reported this morning.

When Flo Ziefel charged $22 for opening nights at the Follies a year ago, people thought the limit had been reached. Not so, however. Earl Carroll is asking $25 for ringside seats at the opening of his new "Vanities." With the tax that means $27.50 per seat. And what's more the house is sold out two weeks in advance.

When Reuben comes to town, the wise crackers take delight in sneering at his rustic accent. They wink knowingly at each other in the restaurants and dig each other's sides when the countryman confers quietly with the waiter.

But their faces stretch a mile when Reuben pulls out the old roll. They become affability itself; they smirk and smile and try to make themselves agreeable. But Reuben ain't no blooming fool. Reuben knows.

Leon Errol says that his stagger is the most difficult part of his stage work. To an audience it may look easy, but it isn't. Errol learned his stagger by studying drunken men. In his earlier days he used to simulate drunkenness on the streets to see what sort of wabbles pleased people most. For there are plenty who get a big kick out of watching a drunken man navigate.

The funny thing about Errol is, and he says so himself, that on rare occasions when he had celebrated too joyously, he never staggered in the least.

I spent the afternoon wandering around some studios in the Village. The Mother Eve costumes of some of the models might be slightly embarrassing for a newcomer, but the girls don't seem to mind. It's art for art's sake here and hoot soot qumal y pence.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

No Prisoners.
Twelve hours from Paris, that city which is called the center of Latin civilization, Rifles and Frenchmen are fighting each other "without taking prisoners." Every man who has the misfortune to fall into the hands of the enemy is promptly bayoneted or shot. This also applies to the wounded. Such procedure is the height of savagery.

The slaughter of 1914-1918 there were few instances of such brutality. For a time it was bruited about in the front line that the British Highlanders of Canada did not take prisoners. They found one of their sergeants crucified by the Germans. The commander of the regiment, Colonel John A. Currie, told this story because they had no time to bury the dead.

If the French actually want to have their country become the greatest moral force in the world, as Monsieur Herriot has phrased it, it is because they have no time to bury the dead.

Man life is sacred whether in Africa or Haiti and it is a matter of responsibility to all mankind.

A Living Tongue.
A prediction that Hebrew, the ancient tongue of the Jews, will eventually become a universal language was recently made by a London Hebrew scholar.

"For years, English and Hebrew have been competing, but Hebrew is winning out, and as English has been the language of the last decade as the language of the present, so Hebrew eventually will supplant English," said the distinguished Hebraist. He cited the case of such words as "matanza" for money, and "kosher" for correct, to indicate how certain Hebrew words are gradually being adopted in the popular language.

And the Hebrew language is being simplified in spelling and pronunciation to such an extent that it will be an easy language to master. The revival of that language is really one of the cultural miracles of our time.

For centuries it was known as a dead tongue; even the Jews had lost familiarity with it. The rebuilding of Palestine and the Jewish home for the Jews has infused new life in a language that gave the world some of its greatest literary masterpieces.

When Lord Balfour spoke in Jerusalem not long ago and touched upon the Hebrew language as a modern medium of speech, he remarked: "It is a long way from Isaiah to micro-biology."

But a language grows with the people. Often little children in the street are its creators. If it is an expressive language it can surpass English in finding idiomatic expressions for such words as radio, telephony and automobile without having to rely on Greek and Latin roots, as we do now. But at that there is an element of warning. In the words of the British prediction, imagine, for instance, President Coolidge conferring with the Chinese ambassador in Hebrew at some future date.

To Sit on China.
It has been proposed to hold a conference on the disturbed conditions in China. America has given the impetus and other nations are likely to agree to such a discussion. Of course, there is an institution in the world created exactly for such purposes, but that institution is ignored in this connection. It is to be hoped that the great powers who are going to deliberate on the future relations with China and in China will have due regard for the rights of the Chinese members of a sovereign people.

Hitherto China has been a market for an exploitation that was often ruthless in character. The white man's greed has gone a good way toward twisting the Chinese mind. The white man's greed has gone a good way toward twisting the Chinese mind. The white man's greed has gone a good way toward twisting the Chinese mind.

With the spirit of nationalism developing so strongly in the Chinese, nations ought to realize that the Chi-

HEALTH TALKS

THE HEALTH VALUE OF HONEST SWEAT.

A great many persons who have or imagine they have some form of "blood poisoning" (whether this term means syphilis or other disease) I would suit me might well believe that if they can go for a sojourn at some resort where hot baths or sweat baths may be had, they can get rid of their "poison."

From their blood through the fanatical excretory activity of the skin, they perform no such office, in health or in sickness, and practically all these earnest valetudinarians "throw off" through their frenzied sweating, a mixture of salt and water, little salt and much water. But the open air life, the walking or other unwonted daily exercise, the good medical treatment, the checking of such resorts, all combine to benefit most of the patrons, and the graduates of the courses return home with the complacent belief in "natural methods" instead of ready to go for another course of baths.

There is a popular misapprehension, shared by some poorly educated physicians, that one runs some risk of harm if one suddenly checks sweating, by going out in the cold, for instance, or by plunging into cold water, or by suddenly stopping after a long run. The implication is that one "takes cold" in this way. The explanation sometimes offered by physicians, is that the sudden checking of sweat in this way causes retention of waste matter of some kind, and that hypothetical waste matter or poison produced in the body, or by the action of the bacteria, is that one "takes cold" in this way. Editor Constitution: Statistics for 1924 show that there were almost as many crimes committed in Georgia as in all of Great Britain, which has a population not far from fifty million, while Georgia's population is around three million, less than half the size of London.

Why such a large percentage of crime in Georgia, as compared with England and Scotland? Is it because the Georgians are so much more wicked and criminally bent than the British; or is it because the British are such an angelic folk that murder is contrary to their nature? Unquestionably neither assumption is true. The English and Scotch are just as prone to commit crime as the Georgians or any other sections of America.

The Savannah Press had an editorial in a recent issue entitled "Dodging the Rope." It went on to say that "rope dodging" had become a sort of fashion in Georgia of late years; capital punishment was out of date and life sentences were generally modified to a few years. Herein lies the reason why so much more crime in Georgia than Great Britain. In England a murderer is given a speedy but legal trial and if found guilty is quickly and quietly disposed of.

There is so much thing as a half dozen appeals, faulty jurors, technicalities, wholesale pardons and a score of other ways for the criminal to escape and perhaps later to commit a similar act.

Of course, it is well to take all precautions against hanging the wrong man; it is better to let ten guilty men go free than put to death one innocent man. But is all this "rope dodging" in Georgia done for the purpose of possibly saving the life of an innocent man? Or is it the result of gaining notoriety on the part of petty politicians or of gaining wealth on the part of unscrupulous attorneys? It is a question and much can be said on both sides.

There are two main theories of the purpose of law. First there is the one that the state must have justice and, therefore, must put to death or imprison an offender against society. The other theory states that society must punish an offender so as to make of him an example so that other citizens may not do likewise. In Great Britain the law operates in Georgia; in Georgia the law operates in Great Britain.

There is a ship without a pilot as regards the law enforcement in Georgia. Not until the people awaken to the fact that law is for their own good can they hope to have less murder in Georgia.

THE TRAPROCK MUSEUM OF UN-NATURAL HISTORY.

By Dr. Walter E. Traprock.

Let us glance today at the Department of Precious Jewels.

I have spoken before of our pearls. They are only the beginning of our marvelous collection. Our diamond display is remarkable. I picked up some of the largest in a curious way.

It is well known that diamonds are made up largely of carbon. During a severe electrical storm in Calcutta, in '36, a bolt struck the electric light pole outside my house. As I looked from my window I saw the ground, where the pole had been, was covered with twinkling objects. Running out, I gathered them up. They were diamonds of the first water, flawless and perfect, made by one of those freaks of Nature which science tries vainly to imitate.

Carbonates, taken from the neck of a Hindoo idol. Our cats-eyes are the finest in the world. I was four years in the jungle, catching the cats from which they were taken. So, too, with our pigeon-blood rubies. The pigeons from which these are derived are the shrewdest of creatures and when caught they shut their eyes tightly so that it is as much as your life is worth to get the eyes out without cracking them.

This necklace of polished glass-stones, semi-precious but very beautiful, carved, were part of the late czar's collection and were given to me by his aide, Col. Shitzloff, during the Russo-Japanese war. How I can by them I did not inquire. It is considered the height of ill-breeding to ask any Russian where he got anything and I was too glad to have these great works of art to run the risk of offending the donor.

KEARNS CHARGES WITH UNDERHAND FIGHT METHODS

Manager Alleges Jack Made Effort To Get Fighter To Change Hands

New York, July 6.—Realizing that Jack Dempsey will never earn another dollar for him in the ring, Jack Kearns tried to persuade Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, to double-cross his own manager and sign up with him, promising that he, Kearns, would arrange to make Maloney champion of the world and a rich man, like Dempsey.

These are the charges made by Bill Cunningham, boxing expert of the Boston Post, in Collier's Weekly of July 11, advance copies of which were released to the United News Monday night.

Cunningham, who was an all-American football man at Dartmouth a few seasons ago, is a youth of approximately size to dispute the question personally with Kearns, if Kearns chooses to regard it as a matter of personal honor. And the managing editor of Collier's announced Monday night that if Kearns desires to dispute the matter in court, the owners of the magazine will be pleased to meet him there and authenticate the statements printed under Cunningham's signature.

Cunningham's piece says Kearns and Dempsey have shut up the most profitable fight shop in the history of the business and goes on to relate that Kearns is a "big, heavy, heavyweight champion" and that he has a staff of trainers, to Boston to establish contact with Maloney.

Kearns was attracted to Maloney, Cunningham says, when the youth, a 200-pounder, only 21 years old, with a long record of knockouts over standard trial horses felled and defeated the gigantic Joe Stessel in a preliminary to the Wills-Firpo fight.

Whereupon, the author relates, Maloney decided to stick to McGrath and gamble on the force of his fists in furthering his ambition to be the champion.

Maloney, an army veteran, is managed by his boyhood friend, Johnny McGrath, and Kearns is said to have asked the fighter to "kick loose" from McGrath or "buy him out."

As the story is related in Collier's, Kearns promised Maloney that he would "smoke his reputation up" in some fight with third-rounders in New York and later in a series of movies, after which he would be matched with Dempsey for the title. Then, as the date of the fight drew nigh, Cunningham declares, Kearns promised to arrange for Dempsey to default, the title to Maloney, saying: "I have been away from the ring too long."

Maloney pondered the offer, but finally asked McGrath if he wanted to sell out.

"Money couldn't buy you loose from me," McGrath replied, according to Cunningham, "but one word from you can do it."

CHANCE AT CUP IS DENIED AMERICAN

London, July 6.—The differences between Mr. Hoover, American oarsman, and Jack Beresford, Jr., British sculler, over the Philadelphia gold challenge cup are causing discussion in sporting circles.

Beresford, winner of the diamond sculls in the Henley regatta of this and last year, has given up all claim to the Philadelphia cup, although Hoover has been asked to resign for an attempt to lift the trophy match race.

Beresford says the amateur rowing association of England will recognize the Philadelphia cup as emblematic of the amateur sculling championship of the world; and therefore he has "handed over the cup to America."

In a special article today the newspaper Sporting Life says: "No matter from what point of view one looks at the situation, one cannot help sympathizing with Hoover, who is one of the finest men ever to compete at Henley."

On the British point of view the situation is a very unfavorable one, if it is true as stated that when Hoover left America it was understood that he would be matched to race on June 20 and that on his arrival Hoover found the race postponed and was unable to get a definite statement as to when Beresford would meet him.

If Beresford did not intend to defend the trophy, surely he could have broadcast the fact to the world before Hoover's arrival.

The writer is unable to see how the Amateur Rowing Association of England can designate the diamond sculls as the world championship, as they are English working men, hundreds of whom are more genuine amateurs than anyone rowing under the association rules.

Forfeit up for two years to fight Walker in New York? queried Flynn, the anxiety of Walker to fight in California, where his manager is very friendly with the promoters and the referees, looks suspicious to me. Why should Walker insist upon fighting in California where the record gap is about $25,000, when he can fight in New York and draw several times as much?

Walker is afraid of Shade and wants every advantage he can get. He is not a fighter, but a promoter. He has not been in New York in the past two years is that Walker wouldn't fight Shade.

New York and Beresford's explanation for this is that he was "tipped off" that he was to be framed. Another reason is that New York promoters didn't think it wise to let the match to go to a good bid for it.

De Marre Shook Finland. When Clarence De Marre, the American marathon runner, beat Stenroos, of Finland, Olympic champion, in a 25-mile race at Boston, he showed that he was a better runner than Stenroos, who had been regarded as another Paavo Nurmi and invincible over the long distances.

Stenroos made a mistake in not considering the fact that he was running against a man who was a better runner than he was. Like Nurmi, he runs his best when he can go out at a fast, steady clip, and set his own pace all the way.

The time when any one section of the United States could claim invincibility in any form of athletics is gone by. Only a few years ago eastern authorities laughed at the notion that the far west could produce champions in any line of sport, and that while the California coast, flashed across the skyline.

Western Football Strong. It was thought that the west had football developed far beyond anything in the west. Recent intercollegiate games showed that the west played fully as good football as the east, and that the west was beginning to develop the greatest credit ever had.

This year Washington was beaten a small part of a boat length by the Navy crew, using one championship for the east. But Southern California took the intercollegiate championship title, succeeding in beating Washington university as champion and keeping the crown in the far west.

The intercollegiate golf finals were fought out between the University of Tulane, New Orleans, and Westland of the University of Washington. The southern boy won with plenty to spare, 9 up and 7 to nothing at the end of the afternoon round.

Closed With Bobby. More than that, he played golf out to that among the amateurs and Hagen in the professional class. In the morning round he broke the Montclair record with a 68, and started his afternoon round with a 34, for a total of 102. He played 20 holes in six strokes over four.

This breaks into the long lead held by eastern colleges in golf, and brings out a new champion who can be classed with Jones and Jess Sweetser as college stars.

Miss Helen Wills of the University of California, last year's women champion, is playing in her best form again this year and seems to be unbeatable at the present time. She easily won the Pacific coast championship last year when "Little Bill" Johnson also won. In college and other amateur track athletics both eastern and western champions have cracked world's records this year.

The west produces stars in the field events and the sprints, and the east has the best distance and middle distance runners, and the west is equal to any in the world, there being very little difference between Charlie Padlock and Jackson Scholz when both are in their best form.

"Geography" in American sport is a thing of the past.

Kearns' Slip of Ethics. Relative To Toledo. And Les Darcy.

The telegraph wires bring news of a slip of the ethics on the part of Jack Kearns, the famous manager of Jack Dempsey, and for the moment, it looks pretty dark for Kearns. Bill Cunningham, who brings the accusation, said he is very sure of his ground and doesn't mind having any kind of a fight over it that Kearns may desire.

This thing of lifting another man's heavyweight, such as Kearns is charged with having attempted to do, is the unpardonable sin among the fight gentry, although goodness knows it is practiced right and left-handed all over the country. Among fight fans it is well known that Mike Collins once went to the courts to prove that Frank Force was managing Fred Fulton while the fighter was under contract to Collins. Not much of a hunter, chatted to fight over, but he was big money then and worth fighting for.

And if memory still is tracked, it was this same Jack Kearns who had some fancy explaining on hand just before the Dempsey-Willard riot at Toledo when John Reiser insisted upon his rights as the original manager of Dempsey.

Reiser, known to the boxing world as "John the Barber," went to Toledo and openly told the world that the courts would interfere with his right to his request unless something nice was done for him. The fact never was broadcast to the world, but Jack Kearns PAID to keep Dempsey out of the hands of Reiser. He BOUGHT Dempsey's old contract, even though it seemed unlikely that Reiser could make it stand up in court. He had abandoned Dempsey and only became interested again after Kearns had developed the tramp that Dempsey then was into the world's heavyweight champion.

Kearns has had it pretty soft since Dempsey crowned Willard. He has run his own and Dempsey's fortunes into staggering figures, the like of which never before was known to a pugilist. Dempsey must be worth nearly a million dollars, or, if he is not, he is headed into the million-dollar class.

Kearns' earnings have equaled those of Dempsey, for everything is split between them on a fifty-fifty basis. However, Kearns is a spender. Money is just something for him to spend, so it is not likely that he has laid away a sum to equal his champion's.

Bill Cunningham's charges against Kearns are not going to do much good, for Kearns probably will ignore them. He is a shrewd and a cunning man, and he knows that if he denies it, the denial will be all for him. As a matter of fact, Kearns might well be expected to admit that Cunningham was right, but he also will point out, probably, that he intended to pay Cunningham for his fighter's contract.

At any rate, Kearns will lose no caste, because he can't very well. He hasn't it to lose.

And, to get back to the list of those who have been mixed up in managerial brawls, Kearns was in another similar row when Les Darcy came to the United States.

When Kearns was in Australia he met Darcy and was asked by the boy's parents to look after their son's fortunes when he came to this country, but when Darcy arrived he brought along a horse trainer named Tim O'Sullivan, who apparently was a thug manager, and he was asked to voice managerial advice to the boy. Kearns didn't want to manage Darcy. He wanted to stage the great boxer's fights and would have done so. However, Darcy ran out on O'Sullivan and attached himself to a boxer whose name escapes me at this moment. Kearns, however, was not after the Australian. He exhibited a contract signed by the visitor, and also produced other documentary proof in the form of letters. He probably was the legal manager of Darcy, but he was not the boy's manager, the whole thing collapsed, because Darcy died.

Darcy undoubtedly would have been but of course, the whole agreement with Kearns, because that worthy, although considered very unscrupulous by those with whom he comes in contact, is nevertheless, a shrewd manager of fighters and is a clever politician. If worry over his predicament in this country killed Darcy, as some would have it, the belief in Kearns' honesty and honesty in Kearns' wing. The things which happened to Darcy would have been brushed aside by Kearns, who would have made Darcy a rich man.

Americans Lose Tennis Tournament to French

Wimbledon, England, July 6.—A new power in the athletics of the world took the last two championships of the Wimbledon tennis tournament by storm, while Miss Nien merely laid the first.

Casey and Hennessey gave the Frenchmen a spunky debate but the fact that the British and American players over such stalwart opposition only accentuated the accomplishments of the French, who prior to the war had been the dominant force in the world of tennis.

The end of the prolonged show in this world series finds Rene Lacoste, a young man, champion in the men's singles, and Miss Nien, champion in the women's singles for the sixth time; Lenglen and Ryan champions in the women's doubles; and Casey and Hennessey in the mixed doubles.

Casey and Hennessey nevertheless exceeded their reasonable expectations in lasting to the final of the doubles. Both were playing for the first time in the world's best tennis, and they were not chosen as America's best players, but only as the best men available for the long trip.

SCHOONER'S CREW HELD FOR ALLEGED LIQUOR SMUGGLING
Mobile, Ala., July 6.—(AP.)—The master and seven members of the crew of the British auxiliary schooner Agnes Louise, captured with a cargo of liquor near the Louisiana coast and towed into Mobile Friday night, were held to the federal grand jury today on a charge of conspiring to violate the tariff act by smuggling liquor into the United States.

The hearing was brief, only the master of the cutter testified that he sighted the schooner off the Louisiana coast and stopped her and found that she had a cargo of liquor. The master of the boat declared he was bound from Havana to Honduras and that he drifted close to the Louisiana shore in a calm. Captain Whitbeck, however, declared that the schooner was approximately 450 miles off the coast when he took it.

Unloading of approximately 2,000 cases of liquor and alcohol, cargo of the schooner, is under way.

Helping the Cause.
During the recent prohibition plebiscite in Ontario, a prominent Ottawa man, who is an ardent prohibitionist, was surprised by a visit at his office from his small bare-legged son.

"Hullo, young man," the father said. "What brought you to town?"

"I was in a parade," the little boy said proudly.

"What parade?" asked his father.

"I don't know," he answered, "but I carried a big sign."

"What was on the sign?" asked the man curiously, and almost collapsed as his son replied:

"My father's a drunkard. I've got no shoes!" — From Everybody's Magazine.

White's Lady Alethaire Sets New Trotting Record

Cleveland, Ohio, July 6.—(AP.)—The historic Edwards stake, with an original value of $5,000, feature of today's Grand Circuit races at North Randall, was split into two divisions of $5,000 each because of the large number of starters. Eight 2:30 pacers faced the starter in each.

The first division developed into a split-hat affair and went to Walter Cox's Skeeter W, and the second to Marvin Child's Ribbon Cane in straight heats.

Lady Alethaire furnished the big surprise of the day when she won the first division of the 2:31 trot and set a new world's record for three-quarters of a mile by stepping the first heat in 1:32 1-5. This is 1-5 longer than the mark of Northern King, made Friday.

Lady Alethaire was the longest shot of the day, two 210 result tickets on her paying $857.45 each. She took the first and third heats, going into a break in the second and finishing seventh. A $2 mutuel ticket in the first heat paid $64.

Thompson Guy led all the way in the first heat of the Edwards stake, division and lasted long enough to beat Archibald, the favorite, a head. He could not withstand the challenge of Frank Worley in the second. Archibald went lame and was pulled up at the first turn. Skeeter W captured the last two heats.

The first three were paced in 2:02 4-5, which equals the stake record, 2:03 4-5 and 2:03 1-5. In the race, Walter Cox, Fred Egan and Sep Packer won the second. Archibald went lame and was pulled up at the first turn. Skeeter W captured the last two heats.

It also required four heats to decide the second division of the 2:18 trot. Ned Hale and Dorothy Gish, which had won an equal amount of money in three heats racing three-quarters.

Choppin shook his head mournfully. "You mean put 'em up, John Hegg?" he said. "I married her before the sergeant from Fakenham, who he was on the way. I thought you'd rather it were a friend."

The handkerchief clicked on Hegg's wrist. For the first time in his life, P. C. Choppin had arrested a murderer.

John Hegg, notwithstanding a strong recommendation to mercy, was hanged by the neck until he was dead, and Israel, Baron Honerton, at out-side, Norwick, in his automobile and listened to the tolling of the bell as one who hears music. As he gave the word to drive off he found himself surrounded by a small but hostile crowd.

It was a matter of common report in the city that but for his tireless efforts the jury's recommendation to mercy would have had due effect. They had heard, these people, of his frequent visits to the home secretary. There were rumors that he had threatened a withdrawal from the political party to which his entire adherence had been given if any measure of leniency were shown to the condemned man. They had seen him now menacingly and the words they shouted were not pleasant to hear. Yet, for the first time since his son's death, Israel smiled. He smiled down the window of his automobile and looked out into the driving rain.

"Is there anyone who wishes to speak to me?" he asked.

There was a volley of catcalls and abuse, sounding oddly enough against the background of that slowly-tolling bell, but no single person accepted the challenge.

Israel was on the point of giving his chauffeur orders to drive on, when a young woman came from the edge of the crowd and approached the automobile. She was young, good looking, in a somewhat quiet manner, even fashionably dressed. She advanced to the side of the automobile and looked in at its occupant.

"Are you Cecil's father?" she inquired.

"I am," he assented.

She pointed to the bell. "He was my father," she said.

Israel scrutinized her from underneath his heavy gray eyebrows, and there was neither interest nor pity in his face.

"It is you loose-living women," he declared, "who bring death in amongst us. Do you realize that it is for the gratification of your lust that I have lost my son and your father?"

She answered him quite calmly. She was obviously a person of education. She was, also, undoubtedly possessed of a rare gift of restraint.

"What about your son?" she asked.

"He was my first lover," he replied.

"That may be so or it may not," she rejoined. "A woman has no knowledge of truth. Are you here to beg from me?"

For the first time she showed some sign of emotion. Her eyes were lit with anger.

"Money! Money! That is all you and your breed think of," she exclaimed passionately. "You buy your pleasures, your wives and you would buy your way into heaven if there were such a place. It is perhaps as well that your son died. He would have grown like the rest of you."

"He bought you, I suppose," Israel remarked.

She took off her glove deliberately, removed a small platinum ring from her finger and threw it into the bottom of the car.

"That is the only present I ever had from your son," he announced. "The only one of value I was ever willing to receive from him."

"What do you want from me?" he demanded abruptly.

The bell had ceased to toll. The crowd of people were slowly dispersing. One or two policemen had been in a casual appearance. There was still every now and then, however, a menacing shout, and once a stone struck the back of the car. A brewer's dray, passing, scattered her with mud. She waited until it had gone before she tried to speak.

"I came to remind you of what you already know," she said. "Of you two men—you and my father—it is you who are the trouble, not he. My father has died at your hands, a shameful death. I found him reading the Old Testament when I paid him my farewell visit. He was buying your code—Life for life, eye for eye. Something like that, isn't it?"

"Well?"

"I have not come to threaten you," she continued, "but I am here to tell you this: For the deed which you have permitted to take place this morning you and your race will suffer. My father killed your son, he is dead; you murdered my father with foul and beastly premeditation. You bought his death with your money. This small money shall spread itself like a foul cobweb of hate and decay over you and your family of whom you are so proud."

He looked at her unmoved, cold and stern, his eyes steady, his tone, when he spoke, bitter.

"So you are a prophetess," he sneered.

She leaned a little forward so that her face was framed in the place where the window would have been. The rain glistened upon her cheeks and clothes, her perfect self-control seemed for a moment disturbed by some new emotion.

"Why not?" she demanded. "You come of a race who have trafficked generations ago with soothsayers and magicians. Have you never heard that there is just one moment in a woman's life when she may see a little beyond the world—a little above it? That moment is with me just now. It is your son's child drawing near to life. You are an old man and you will not live to see the things of which I tell you, but nevertheless they are true. The millions for which you have toiled are changing already into the poison which will bring your people to naught and worse than naught. The fear of it is in your heart already. You will never lose it. You will die on your bed and not on that shameful scaffold, but your heart will be as heavy as his because, like all others in those fading moments, you will see the truth."

As quietly and unobtrusively as she had come she turned and passed away. The old man sat in his place and watched her. She walked, notwithstanding her dripping state, with dignity and self-possession. He pulled up the window and uttered a brief order to the chauffeur. Somehow or other he felt balked of the sudden joy with which he had entered upon the morning. Ghosts rode with him.

During the afternoon, Israel sought his wife in her sitting room. She was a large lady, addicted to post-lunch repose, and neither the persuasions of her more childish children nor the stern disapproval of her husband had ever succeeded in preventing her from adorning herself by daytime as well as night with a great profusion of costly and glittering gems. Her husband stood and watched her for several moments. By some irony of fate he found his thoughts wandering back to the day of their marriage—she, a slim, half-frightened child with dark eyes still holding a touch of the visionary. This was what his wealth had brought, the result of 40 years of luxury. She opened her eyes slowly and returned his gaze.

"What is it, Israel?" she asked, a little peevishly.

"It came to my mind to ask you a question," he said. "This girl of Hegg's, do you know anything of her?"

"Not I!" was the indignant response. "What do you mean? Has she been to ask for money?"

Israel shook his head, moved away, and his wife once more closed her eyes.

Israel made his way to his library, a room of solemn magnificence, yet somehow imbued with a touch of its new owner's austerity. He sent for his butler.

"Groves," he said, "you have lived in this neighborhood all your life. 'All my life, your lordship,' the man assented.

"I should like you," Israel continued, "to tell me what you know of the young person, Hegg's daughter."

"Very good, my lord," Groves replied. "There was—your lordship will pardon my asking—there was no repute?" he added with a note of anxiety in his tone.

"There was no repute," Hegg's daughter was named at 8 o'clock this morning.

The man stood for a moment without speech. His master read his thoughts with grim resentment.

"The young lady, my lord," the former proceeded, "was a very superior person. Hegg himself came from a family of young gentlemen, farmers, they call themselves. They had lived in these parts for generations. The young lady won scholarships and went to college and Oxford university. She was very clever and very gifted. She was—if your lordship will pardon my saying so—very much esteemed here."

"Do you know where she is now?" Israel inquired, after a moment's pause.

"I have no idea, my lord. She has not been seen in these parts for some time."

His master dismissed him with a little wave of the hand, and presently wrote a letter to his lawyers. In three or four days he received a reply.

7 Lincoln's Inn.

Dear Lord Honerton: We have carried out your instructions and have been in communication with the young lady who, as seems natural under the somewhat shameful circumstances, has changed her name. We regret, however, to inform you that she declines in the most absolute and uncompromising terms to hold any communication with any member of your family. We may add that there is no indication of her being in any financial distress. Faithfully yours, Fields, Marshall & Fields.

Israel had received the letter after dinner one night and had taken it to his library to read. Slowly he tore it to pieces and threw them on to the fire. A way of something like that there swept through his mind. He felt a sudden giddiness, staggered toward his easy chair, and rang the bell.

That night Israel, Lord Honerton, died.

Joseph, second Baron Honerton, was, unlike his long defunct father, in no sense of the word a dreamer, or an idealist. He had finished a very excellent dinner before he even thought of disengaging himself for a moment from the conversation of the honored guest on his right and taking upon his sumptuous dining table.

The room itself was unchanged since Israel, the founder of the family, had sat in his son's place 30 years ago. It was the guests, the men and women seated around the table, who marked the progress of time.

This was not a family party, such as you would have been dear to the heart of Israel. In 20 years the new lords of the manor had grafted themselves upon the soil they had purchased. It was a tolerant age, where social qualifications were more readily accepted than in the days of old. After all, a son of Joseph had been in the Eton eleven and was doing well today in the embassy at Paris, apart from which Judith, the younger daughter, was without any rival the beauty of the season. Great painters approached her humbly for sittings. Very desirable young men had sought her and her millions. She had only one drawback, as many of those in her immediate circle had already discovered. She was amazingly, and unpleasantly, clever. Her father's eyes rested for a moment upon her beautiful face, with just the same contented, self-approving pleasure with which he would have contemplated some object d'art which he had bought that afternoon at Christie's.

Joseph's eyes passed from Judith to his only surviving brother, Samuel, an irritable dyspeptic, out of health and temper with the world—whose presence was some faint concession to the spirit of the departed Israel. They passed over a little row of well-dressed, well-bred people with complacent indifference, rested for a moment kindly upon his wife at the other end of the table, with her elaborately coiffured white hair, parchment skin, and brilliant eyes, and finally lingered, with something nearer real affection, upon the handsome yet rather obtrusively Semitic form of Ernest, his younger son, who had just entered the business.

It was a company with which any host might be satisfied, a son and daughter of whom any father might be proud.

"I can't tell you how much Frederick is looking forward to his shooting tomorrow," the marchioness, who was seated on his right, observed. "Our own pheasants this year have been so disappointing. The fact is, we don't rest nearly enough birds, and haven't been able to for years."

To be continued tomorrow.

McConnell-Bouzigues Wedding Is Social Event at Pittsburg, Pa.

Of social and cordial interest in Pennsylvania as well as Georgia is the announcement of the wedding of Mrs. Kathleen Booth McConnell and Paul Richard Bouzigues, which was solemnized Monday evening, July 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hutchison on Ellsworth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa. Dr. James W. Horton, of the First Methodist church, performed the beautiful ring ceremony in the presence of a few close friends.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison presented a beautiful scene with its decorations of stately palms, pedestal baskets of Easter lilies and cathedral candelabra which were arranged in tiers.

Preceding the bride was Mrs. Hutchison, who was lovely in her frock of orchid chiffon fashioned on soft and graceful lines and worn with a large, drooping hat of the same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of tea roses and valley lilies.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Merle C. Hutchison. She was exquisitely gowned in an imported model of flesh-colored chiffon elaborately beaded in crystals. A becoming picture hat of the same shade, adorned with a single rose, completed the beautiful costume. She carried an arm bouquet of valley lilies and orchids.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison entertained at an elaborate dinner in the Florentine room of the William Penn hotel. Immediately after the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bouzigues left for their wedding trip to Atlantic City and points of interest through the east. On their return to the city they will make their home with the bride's parents until they take possession of their apartment in the early fall.

Mr. Bouzigues is a popular member in the insurance circles of Atlanta, being prominently connected with the firm of A. H. Turner company as their attorney. He is a graduate of law and a member of the Delta Theta Phi fraternity, the Atlanta Athletic club, and during the world war he served as first lieutenant, later attaining the commission of captain. Over one hundred invitations had been issued throughout Georgia to this social event, and the local invitations were confined to the past grand worthy matrons and the present and associate matrons of Atlanta.

Mrs. Turner is among the most popular women in the state, and has done outstanding work in the O. E. S. She is a member of the Atlanta Woman's club, and has given valuable aid to educational, charity and civic life.

Waste of Water Made Unlawful In East Point Act

Drought conditions in and about Atlanta were reflected Monday in an ordinance passed by city council and approved by Mayor L. H. Liver, of East Point, which makes it unlawful to waste water during the present dry period.

This is the first legal action taken to conserve water, although Decatur and East Lake, two other Atlanta suburbs, have spread circulars requesting citizens to be sparing in the use of water during the present dry season.

East Point citizens who insist on using water for irrigation, watering lawns or gardens, washing automobiles or other machinery will face a fine of from $5 to $25 or a changing sentence of from 10 to 30 days, according to provisions of the ordinance.

"Although our water supply, which is furnished by 10 art. wells, is low, we do not expect any serious shortage," Mayor Liver said. "We are just seeking to prevent any possible serious damage which might result if we were left without adequate provision for actual needs of East Point citizens. We are sure that all citizens of the city will be glad to aid us in the conservation of the water."

"Sunday Not Sabbath," Declares Minister In Monday Service

Evangelist Alonzo Bruce Russell in a sermon Monday night on "The Sunday Sabbath" at the big canvas tabernacle on Holderness street near Little Avenue, said "in summing up the facts that we have learned in this study we are forced to the conclusion that Sunday is not the Christian Sabbath."

"It has never been and never will be. The Sunday Sabbath is a pagan plant that has been transplanted into the garden of God. Sunday was a pagan holiday of ancient Rome and it found its way into the church in the early centuries of the Christian era."

"It is a child of paganism, an impostor and a thief."

"The church is diseased and in a fearfully weakened condition. It has lost the vitality, the strength and the love for its own people."

"The poison of evolution which denies the miracle of the creation as outlined in the Scriptures, the fall of man, the virgin birth and the resurrection of Christ is responsible for the restless and inflamed condition of the church today."

Miss Ruth Dabney Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Smith, who is quite a talented violinist.

In a contest for a violin scholarship in the Chicago Musical College Summer Master school, Miss Ruth Smith won a half scholarship with the noted violin teacher, Leon Lametini, with whom she will study for the full summer term.

Miss Smith, although quite young, has already attained recognition of her ability and talent on the violin. She has studied under George Lindner at Washington seminary. Besides taking violin, she took the regular musical course with theory, harmony and history of music, and she received her certificate in violin at graduation.

Miss Smith is also a student of the piano, and is quite talented. She has held the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., scholarship of piano with Mrs. Mabelle Wall, for a number of years.

An added inspiration to Miss Smith for her work and study on the violin, is the possession of a rare old violin of Tyrolean workmanship which has descended to her from her great-grandfather Smith, of Virginia.

At Warsaw Mr. Stetson, who is new in the diplomatic service, will succeed A. J. Pearson, who has been transferred to Finland as American minister. Some time ago Mr. Stetson was named to the Finland post but he had not taken over his duties there. It is understood that Mr. Pearson requested the transfer to Poland, one of the reasons being that he found the expenses incident to service in Poland higher than he felt justified in meeting.

HOLIDAY DEATH TOLL NOW REPORTED AT 250

Chicago, July 6.—(AP).—The toll of holiday fatalities throughout the country mounted today to the 250 mark, with automobile accidents and drownings at the head of the list, without the Boston cabaret tragedy in which 43 perished.

Although the Fourth of July passed with remarkably few deaths from fireworks and explosions, the abnormal traffic in suburban areas led to an unusually long list of dead and injured.

More than 400 were injured in the states which reported the heaviest death tolls.

Illinois reported 57 dead and more than 100 injured.

Other state totals follow: Massachusetts, 49; New York, 26; Indiana, 13; Ohio, 29; Missouri, 2; Connecticut, 8; Rhode Island, 3; New Jersey, 3; Pennsylvania, 6; Vermont, 2; Minnesota, 8; Iowa, 4; California, 10; Colorado, 3; North Dakota, 2.

Gulfport, Miss., July 6.—(AP).—Dr. W. K. Kilgus, entomologist from the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, with headquarters at Washington, arrived on the Mississippi coast today for the purpose of conducting a complete investigation into the mosquito invasion which recently occurred here.

Dr. Kilgus was in conference with county health officers of Pass Christian, Gulfport and Biloxi relative to plans to be mapped out in connection with the campaign. He came to the coast to acquire knowledge of the mosquito and will also investigate mosquito breeding and distribution in the Louisiana marshes as well as along the coast from Pascagoula to Bay St. Louis.

Chinese Teacher Scores U. S. Law As Being Unjust

Chicago, July 6.—(AP).—China's objections to the American exclusion acts and to the international banking consortium in which the United States is taking a leading part, were told by Saunders, former president of the Piggly Wiggly corporation, in refusing to answer certain questions relating to the business of the Clarence Saunders corporation, in a recent hearing investigated by creditors who sought to prevent Saunders from being discharged from bankruptcy.

Therefore, he held that the questions Saunders refused to answer were outside the proper scope of the examination and that Saunders was not in contempt of court.

"The Chinese people fail to see any justification in other nations insisting on China's observation of an open door policy while they close their own doors against the coming of Chinese," he said.

"China isn't anxious to see her laboring classes migrate to America; contrary to this, she is anxious that they should stay at home where they may be easily absorbed in the expansion of her industrial enterprises and the development of the vast sparsely settled regions of Manchuria and Mongolia. However, China resents the unfairness of the exclusion laws as being entirely one-sided."

"With China, the objection against the exclusion of labor immigration is not a question of necessity but of national honor and justice."

Prominent Georgians Have Attended Athens Institute, Record Shows

Athens, Ga., July 6.—(Special).—Wives, mothers and daughters of prominent Georgians have attended the Athens institute in Athens, according to Miss Mildred Rutherford, again director of the college, who is gathering information about her former students.

Five sisters of Governor Clifford M. Walker attended Lucy Cobb, says Miss "Mildred" as she is affectionately known to alumni and all southerners.

Three sisters of Pleasant A. Stovall, editor of The Savannah Press, formerly minister to Switzerland under Woodrow Wilson's administration, went there.

Former Senator Holke Smith's wife and two daughters are Lucy Cobb alumnae.

Ex-Governor Joseph Brown's daughter went there. Judge Samuel H. Shibley's wife and mother attended the Athens institute. The wives of H. Hollins Randolph, of Atlanta, in charge of the Stone Mountain Memorial monument, and of Reuben Arnold, prominent Atlanta lawyer, are Lucy Cobb women.

The mother of Bowdler Phinizy, editor of The Augusta Herald, and former trustee of the University of Georgia, went to Miss "Mildred" school.

A sister, three daughters, and the wife of Judge Richard R. Russell, chief justice of the Georgia supreme court, and chairman of the board of trustees of the university of Georgia, are Lucy Cobb alumnae.

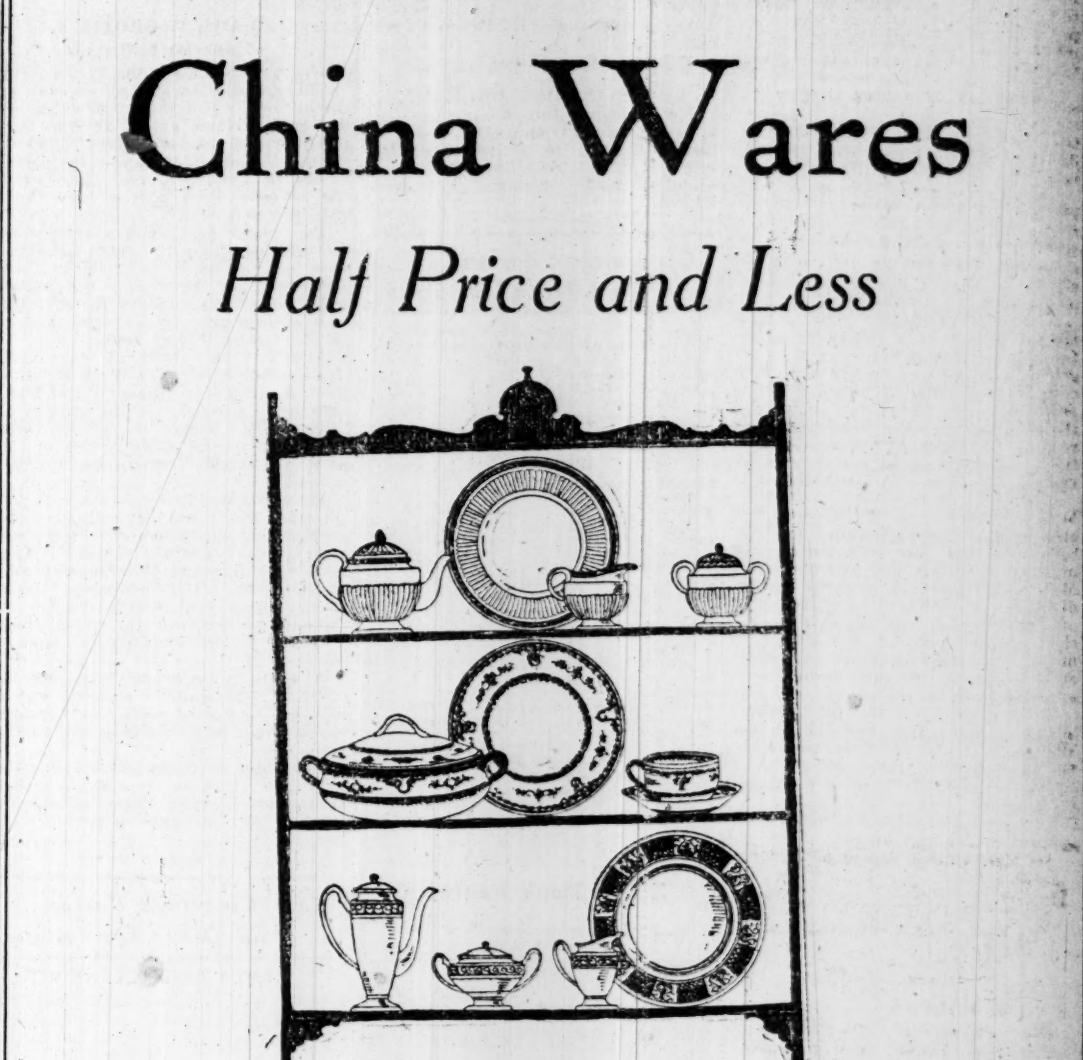

Three sisters and the second wife of C. H. Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, as well as two daughters of Judge Peter W. Mildred, of Savannah, attended Lucy Cobb. The daughter of Henry Hodgeson, trustee of the University of Georgia, is an alumnae. Other prominent alumnae are: Mrs. Frank Harrold, present general of the U. S. D. C.; Mary Brent Whiteside, who writes for Harpers and Scribners; the daughter of Colonel Lawson Peel, of Atlanta, also attended Lucy Cobb.

Your Life will hold more contented days

This NEW way in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem warrants never a moment's charm lost

ONE-SIXTH of the average woman's life is spent in self-consciousness, in fear of charm lost.

Today that is a folly. Live every day, unhindered. Wear your lightest frocks, dance, dine, motor in security and content.

Modern science has uprooted the old-time sanitary pad with a better way. A way that is changing women's hygienic habits universally.

The name is Kotex... a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad.

That means great protection. It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense. You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits. It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—and is scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discarded as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped—help yourself, say the clerk, that is all.

New York, July 6.—An early decline was followed by rallies in the cotton market today. October contracts selling up from 22.52 to 22.55 and closing at 22.54. The general market closed very steady at a net advance of 13 to 20 points. Active positions sold 25 to 32 points net lower in early trading, under liquidations or local selling, inspired by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of showers over a holiday in Texas.

July sold off to 22.70, new low ground for the movement, but the decline in the new crop month was checked at about the low prices of last Friday morning, and the market steadied at midday on failure of weather advice to show rains of consequence in drought sections of Texas. Elsewhere generally satisfactory, but the continuance of the drought in parts of the southwest led to covering by recent sellers, and the market advanced to 22.70 for July and 22.40 for December in late trading. Last prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best.

Exports today 82 bales, making 8,057,503 for this season. Port receipts 681. United States port stocks 338,973.

MARKET QUIET AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, July 6.—The cotton market ruled rather quiet today except for a sharp spurt near the close due mainly to covering by shorts owing to continued lack of rain in the Texas drought sections. During the early trading prices eased off 20 points on October, but practically all of this loss was recovered by mid-session and in the late trading prices were lifted 25 points additional and the active new crop month closed 20 points net higher for the day.

The market started out with a decline of 24 to 28 points due mainly to much lower Liverpool cables than due. After a slight rally right after the call, the market eased off again on private reports of rains, October trading down to 22.15 and December to 22.30. These levels proved to be the day's lows.

After the posting of the weather map and the publication of the official forecast promising no rain, prices rallied and around noon October traded at 22.42 and December at 22.57. The market then continued steadily near the midday highs until within a quarter of an hour of the close when October advanced rapidly to 22.67 and December to 22.81. The final advance was due to covering and to the noon reports showing no rain in Texas.

The main features were the continued drought in Texas and the ex-dence that the market was oversold and transfer in a technical position to foster rallies on covering. New bales were reported from several Texas points, including Bryan in central Texas.

Exports today, 82 bales.

Amundsen and Ellsworth Will Not Again Attempt To Reach North Pole by Plane

Both, However, May Again Make Voyage Into Arctic—Believe Zepelin Could Make Trip.

BY JAMES B. WHARTON.

(Special to the Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.) Oslo, July 6.—Neither Amundsen nor Ellsworth will ever again attempt polar exploration by airplane. This decision has been reached by them after the most careful consideration of every factor in their recent flight. Their experience has proved conclusively, they believe, that heavier than air craft are dangerous and impractical in the Arctic.

Although ice and light conditions would not always be so unfavorable as they found them on this flight, yet the prevailing uncertainty regarding these vital conditions seems to them to preclude further polar exploration by airplane.

But Arctic travel by dirigible seems to be more practicable. When I asked them point blank today if they were interested in Ekner's proposal to try for the pole in a super-Zepplin, they said yes, indeed. But they were non-committal as to their own participation in such a project. Ekner has already expressed himself as anxious to have them with him in the enterprise.

Ellsworth Plans New Trip. Lina Ellsworth, the only American of the six men who made the great northward flight, is certainly not finished with the Arctic.

"I have only just begun," he said to me today. "The mysteries of the vast polar basin have a remarkable fascination. I have had only a taste of it. It gets into your blood, and you must go on. That is how I feel. Discussing the Ekner project, Ellsworth added: "A lighter-than-air craft could always avoid being crushed in the ice by hovering or keeping a weight off the ice through its gas content."

I believe that any project for a polar flight by dirigible should not be content with merely reaching the pole, but should plan its route for a flight clear across the pole, terminating in Japan.

Ellsworth pointed out that there is no longer any mystery about the area between Spitzbergen and the pole. While his airplane reached only latitude 87.44, yet their area of "observation" extended nearly a degree beyond this point, to within 100 miles of the pole.

Both May Try Again. "The valuable area for scientific exploration now lies beyond the pole," he said. "There is, undoubtedly, land in that district, a vast area which has never been penetrated." Today, more than two weeks after his return to Spitzbergen, Ellsworth still shows the marks of his experience in his face, which is drawn and wrinkled from the strain of those terrible days in the north.

Ellsworth has responsibility for the lives of the men that were down, he explained today. For three weeks during their isolation in the north, Amundsen and Ellsworth at hours when they should have been sleeping paced the side of the airplane and told each other, with the grim emphasis of repetition: "We must not die up here."

Probably both men will try again—not with airplanes, but in some more practical vehicle. They will again sink their lives against the Arctic, I feel sure.

Reginald Denny.

(At the Howard.)

Reginald Denny opened at the Howard yesterday in his latest comedy success, "Oh, Doctor!"

The picture is based on the funniest story that Harry Leon Wilson ever wrote.

Denny takes the part of a young chap who has been sick all his life.

In fact he has literally been raised with a medicine spoon in his mouth.

Finally he meets the only girl; then he is very anxious to get well. She is the type of girl who wants a man who is afraid of nothing and he decides to show her that he is that kind.

He does everything from driving racing automobiles to climbing telephone poles.

This week Alex Keesee is presenting his first syncope week and he has arranged a very interesting program for the stage, including Miss Bee Curtis, the originator of the Charleston dance.

Elmer McDonald, popular baritone, is also heard singing "Deep Elm."

"His Supreme Moment."

(At the Metropolitan.)

An unusual platonic trial marriage furnishes the chief dramatic situation in "His Supreme Moment," which is the fourth anniversary attraction at the Metropolitan theater.

A beautiful and luxury-loving New York actress falls in love with a young mining engineer and proposes that they spend a year in South America as brother and sister before making their final decision.

Blanche Sweet and Ronald Colman are featured in the picture which includes Jane Winton, Belle Bennett, Cyril Chadwick, Ned Sparks and Nick de Ruiz.

Virginia Dabney and Sarah Sharp are featured on the prologue. Leide Overbury and the comedy are well received.

"The Painted Lady."

(At the Rialto.)

Audiences and critics have hailed "The Painted Lady" as one of the season's outstanding successes, the very best in screen entertainment. And this delightful, temperamental lady so the lipstick fill continues to live up to her good advance reputation at the Rialto theater the rest of the week.

A great bit story of a good girl, young and beautiful, driven by hunger and despair to the life of painted luxury that quickly falls. And then, under the spell of the South Seas, she meets the big fine sailor chap, the man of her dreams, and his big clean love. It is red-blooded romance, double-barreled drama all the way.

George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackall, a uniquely successful team, play the star parts. Lucille Ricksen, Margaret McWade, Lucille Hulse, Harry T. Morey and others are in the supporting cast. Another episode of "The Painted Lady" provides plenty of amusement in hearty laughter for 20 minutes. Whitney Hubner furnishes the music. A News reel is shown.

LOEW'S PROGRAM

PLEASES AUDIENCE

ON OPENING NIGHT

Reminiscences of the days when musical comedies were real musical comedies are brought to mind in the singing and dancing act offered by the Fletcher-Clayton revue of Loew's.

Grand one of the headlines of the new bill which opened Monday. Many revues come and go in vaudeville, some of them good and some of them bad, but the Fletcher-Clayton offering is one that makes even the old sagers sit up and take notice.

The Fletcher-Clayton revue brings a lot of new steps which is a real thing to watch the usual routine and fill in between dances with some happily conceived comedy.

The Fletcher-Clayton revue, however, is not only a new thing, but an all-star bill. Lady Teen Mei, "the Chinese nightingale," pleased mightily with her singing Monday. She is Chinese but sings songs in English with a regular Broadway accent.

Another turn which pleased Monday was the ludicrous black face comedy sketch, "Oh Charlie," with wide departure from the usual run of burnt cork comedies. Four comedians kept the crowds laughing in this sketch.

Tom McRae and Ada Mott offer some clever novelties in their skit, "Who's Who."

Stanley and Elva open the bill with a wile winking and a little dance. They are a real team and Stanley displays his skill and ability as a pantomimist.

"The Speed Spook" with Johnny Hines, produced regular gales of laughter and crowded with rapid-fire action of the speedway, proved also to be a thriller through and through.

—PAUL STEVENSON.

COMEDY FEATURES

"SECOND 'BIG TIME'"

FORSYTH PROGRAM

The bill at Keith's Forsyth for this week specializes in comedy. The comedy is of every variety, one act and two act, and the bill this week doesn't seem quite as good as last week's, measured by applause, it went over bigger.

Outstanding acts this week are Frankie Keely and company in a musical farce "All Aboard"; Amoros and Janet in the aforementioned "Shokum supreme," and Sam Armstrong and Mabel Blondell, billed as a "Couple from Hollywood." James "Fat" Thompson and company in "The Burglars' Union," tickle the risibilities of this generation just

NATIONAL GUARD GATHERS AT TYBEE

Savannah, Ga., July 6.—The last of the troops expected for the encampment of the 122d Infantry of the Georgia National Guard reached Tybee at 6:15 o'clock this morning.

Two trains arrived today and swelled the number of men in the encampment to approximately 1,150 enlisted men besides about 80 officers, according to the figures announced by Captain Charles B. Stuart, adjutant.

On the first train, which was under the command of Lieutenant Colonel N. T. Watkins, executive officer of the regiment, were Colonel C. C. Pope and his staff. Besides these, the following officers were on the train: Major U. T. Winslett, captain, Major C. B. Stuart, captain, J. C. Haile, plans and training officer, Captain H. A. Heins and First Lieutenant Frank B. Maloney, to which matters requiring investigation or recommendations will be referred by the regimental commander.

Reports of company commanders disclosed that with few exceptions all details for the summer camp had been completed and members are awaiting only the hour for entraining. Captain Alexander has been designated as first in charge of entraining and de-training, the regimental commander voicing warmest praise of Captain Alexander's method of handling this work.

The regular luncheon of officers at the Ansley hotel will be held at noon Wednesday.

SOLONS TO ATTEND

OPERA AS GUESTS

OF LOCAL CHAMBER

Georgia's legislators will be honored guests of the Atlanta chamber of commerce tonight at the second presentation of "The Gypsy Baron," in the municipal opera series at the city auditorium.

Letters were mailed to members of both the house of representatives and senate containing the invitation and giving instructions as to where to call for tickets and necessary reservations.

Colonel Kimbrough says it is the plan of the commanding officers to arrange the schedule in a such a way that the morning and afternoon will be devoted to athletics and recreations. The instructions, he stated, will consist of close and extended drill, instruction in the use of the machine gun, the 37 mm. gun, the Stokes mortar and lectures on various military subjects. The officers and non-commissioned officers' schools will also be held in the mornings. The recreation will be in charge of a chaplain, probably Captain L. B. Harrell, of Atlanta, regimental chaplain and entertainment officer. Boxing matches, movies, amateur theatricals, etc., will be staged for them, as well as many forms of athletic games.

about as much as it tickled our fathers. Completing the bill are Ralph Keely and Nan Sterling in a trapeze and ring act.

The Armstrong and Blondell team pull a good line of acts, use a piano and banjo a little, burlesque a little and dance. They are a real team and Amoros and Janet go to the extremes of burlesque for their fun and they get much better as the progresses and wind up with the house demanding many encores.

Frankie Keely and company presents a couple who do splendid eccentric dancing, a girl comedienne of the Mitzi Hajos type and several good male voices.

"The Fat" Thompson act presents a blackface comedian who is clever, a good straight lead and the old comedy that is always sure-fire stuff.

In the opening act the man does some balancing young with a chair on the trapeze and the girl is clever in her acrobatics. The only thing wrong with the act is the patter, which could be improved on considerably.

Pathe Review and Pathe News pictures complete the bill. The review presents some striking colored pictures and the news reel is interesting.

122nd Regiment Ready To Entrain For Summer Camp

The regular drill period Monday night of the 122d Infantry, "Atlanta's Own" National Guard regiment, took the form of a general polishing process preparatory to entraining the latter part of next week for Tybee Island for the annual summer encampment.

Equipment is being put into shape and final drill training points, brought in brief talks by company commanders, constituted the principal features of the night's program, which got under way soon after Colonel Charles H. Pope had called officers together for the regular officers' meeting.

Announcement was made at the officers' meeting of the creation of a board composed of Lieutenant Colonel Eugene Oederlofer, Captain Frank A. Heins and First Lieutenant Frank B. Maloney, to which matters requiring investigation or recommendations will be referred by the regimental commander.

Reports of company commanders disclosed that with few exceptions all details for the summer camp had been completed and members are awaiting only the hour for entraining. A Word of Comfort. Of course you have made your will. The desire to protect and control the use of your material possessions prompted it.

Your greatest legacy is the influence of your character and that you cannot increase or diminish or direct, when you leave this world behind.
